THE BIG LIFT

STUDENTS DISAPPOINTED

Irked Premier Stops Debate

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Premier Bennett abruptly adjourned the legislature at 9 p.m. Monday after a night session had been in progress less than an hour.

The premier stated after the House rose that he moved adjournment because night sessions were intended to "get work done, not to waste time."

Opposition leader Robert Strachan retaliated immediately by saying:

"The premier adjourned the House because he did not want the government's welfare estimates discussed while the public galleries were filled with welfare workers."

As the House adjourned, a sigh of disappointment was heard from the public galleries, where 50 students from the University of B.C. School of Social Work had gathered.

BLACK HEART OF HITLER ON PAGE 21 TODAY

OWNED SPY EQUIPMENT

Mystery Man Takes Blame

LONDON (AP) — Gordon A. Lonsdale, mystery man of the British naval secrets trial, dramatically acknowledged in court today that spy equipment found in a suburban bungalow belonged to him.

The key figure of the spy trial, variously represented as an American, a Russian and a Canadian, took full blame for a radio transmitter which could be beamed to Moscow, a cigarette lighter with secret compartments, photographic equipment with microdots used in espionage and some fake passports.

The house where Scotland Yard found the assorted paraphernalia was owned by Peter Kroger, 50, and his wife, Helen, 47.

Lonsdale said they were innocent of any connection with the suspect items. He claimed that $2,500 in American money found in the house also belonged to him.

Lonsdale made his voluntary statement in Old Bailey courtroom without being sworn, a procedure that prevented his being cross-examined.

Lonsdale spoke for seven minutes as soon as court convened. He made no mention of the remaining two defendants, Henry F. Houghton, 55-year-old British naval clerk, and Houghton's girl friend, Ethel E. Gee, 46, a fellow employee.

Houghton and Miss Gee admitted they gave Lonsdale papers relating to Britain's undersea warfare and films of drawings of the top secret atomic submarine Dreadnought.

INNOCENCE CLAIMED
As soon as Lonsdale accepted full responsibility for the items found in the Kroger home, the Krogers made statements in a similar manner—not under oath—that they were innocent.

Lonsdale said he was "anxious that Mr. and Mrs. Kroger should not suffer from what I have done in putting my property in their home."

"I have known the Krogers since 1953," Lonsdale told the jury of 12 men, who have sat since March 13.

OFTEN VISITED HOUSE
"During the last two or three years I often visited them and sometimes spent weekends in their home. Whenever they went away from Ruislip, Peter Kroger would leave the keys with me and ask me to stay at his house where he had anti-quarian books worth several thousand pounds."

"He knew I lived in a very small service flat. I used this flat as an excuse to keep at the Krogers some of my property, for example, my Praktina camera, various photographic equipment and some other articles."

"At one time while the Krogers were away I constructed the hiding place found in the foundation of the house and deposited there for long-term storage the radio transmitter and other articles."

These estimates were to have followed adoption of estimates for the recreation and conservation department.

The premier moved adjournment after taking back the much-debated salary vote of Recreation Minister Earle Westwood.

He did this angrily, and abruptly, after Leo Nimsick (CCF-Cranbrook) had stated that other members of the House lacked the courage to

New Pledge By JFK On Air Runs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department reported today that President Kennedy has given the Soviet government renewed assurance that U.S. aircraft will avoid violating Soviet air space.

This was an outgrowth of a new RB-47 incident which occurred in January in the vicinity of the Island of Visze, Soviet territory in the Arctic waters of the Kara Sea.

An earlier RB-47 incident occurred last July 1 over the Barents Sea. In that case the American plane was shot down by Soviet fighters.

NO FIRING
In the January affair, press officer Lincoln White said today, there was no firing on the American plane nor was there any formal Soviet protest.

White declined to give the exact date of the January incident. He said the Soviet foreign office "orally informed" the U.S. Embassy in Moscow and that it presumed the alleged violation had occurred over Soviet territorial waters.

Subsequently, the American Embassy informed the foreign office that an investigation had been conducted and that the United States did not believe a violation of Soviet air space had occurred.

Sailor Keeps His Word

Leading Seaman Robert Heans, 29, 720 Miller, has come through nobly.

When the Times last December was conducting a fund-raising campaign on behalf of the Unitarian Service Committee for the starving children of India, the Naden sailor wanted to help.

But he was broke.

So he offered to rotate till a garden for somebody if that person would contribute to the fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Connor, 1169 North Park, took him up on the offer.

On Monday LS Heans rotated a 75 by 50 foot patch of land near their house.

When he finished, the Connor brought a $10 cheque to the Times, which will purchase food for the waifs of the sub-continent.

Concessions Made to Soviet

GENEVA (Reuters)—The United States today proposed to let Soviet scientists inspect all nuclear devices to be used in American seismic research programs.

The offer was among a number of proposals made by American delegate Arthur Dean as the three-nation talks on a nuclear tests ban resumed here after a 15-week recess.

Dean said both Britain and the United States would accept a Soviet demand that their scientists be allowed to take part in all stages of experimental explosions, including inspection of the devices, how they were exploded and the data obtained from the tests.

He said President Kennedy would ask Congress to authorize such inspection, banned at present under the MacMahon Act which forbids all foreigners from examining U.S. nuclear devices.

Dean asked the Russians to grant American scientists similar access to Soviet nuclear devices if Russia decided to explode them in a Soviet research program.

He also asked the Russians to reconsider their decision not to take part in joint seismic research programs with the West.

Dean said the West is prepared to agree to a moratorium of three years on small underground explosions. The West had previously proposed a two-year moratorium with an additional period of three months' appraisal.

The Russians have proposed a moratorium of four to five years.

The American delegate said the West is prepared to grant the Soviet Union a total of 20 annual inspections of suspicious seismic events on United States soil and an additional 20 on British territories.

The West previously had suggested 20 inspections on Soviet territory and 20 to be divided between the two Western powers.

The Russians last year would agree to no more than three inspections on Soviet territory.

Dean also conceded the So-

'ANY CONTROL' ACCEPTABLE SAYS MR. K

LONDON (Reuters)—Nikita Khrushchev today said the Soviet Union will agree to "any" control over its sweeping three-stage disarmament plan.

In a three-hour speech from the Asian republic of Kazakhstan broadcast throughout Russia by Moscow radio, the Soviet premier said:

"We are not threatening anyone. On the contrary, we do not want war."

He said Russia will "accept any conditions of control on disarmament if our proposals on disarmament are accepted."

Khrushchev last September proposed a three-stage disarmament plan before the United Nations General Assembly in New York including elimination of nuclear weapons; prohibition of all means of mass destruction, and completion of the abolition of armed forces.

The West countered with a more gradual plan.

FOR VERWOERD

Boos One Side, Cheers on Other

(Times News Services)
CAPETOWN — Boiling crowds and demonstrating Negroes greeted South African Prime Minister Verwoerd today.

As the prime minister drove up to his office in the Parliament Building he was booed by non-whites on one side of the street protesting South Africa's withdrawal from the Commonwealth over its race policy.

Whites on the other side of the street cheered and waved placards welcoming him home from the London meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers.

There were no disorders, but later in the afternoon several hundred persons, mostly Negroes, gathered on the main street in defiance of a ban against all demonstrations.

Nine Negro women were arrested and crowds of Africans swarmed around the police van as it took them away.

Verwoerd in his first report on the London conference said in a message to Parliament he did everything possible to keep South Africa in the Commonwealth but had no other choice but to withdraw.

Verwoerd sent a message to Parliament that he could not address it in person today as expected, but would do so Thursday.

He said he understood that British Prime Minister Macmillan would make a statement in the House of Commons Wednesday and "in these circumstances, I do not think I should make any statement until Mr. Macmillan has made his."

Indications earlier were that Verwoerd might make a dramatic announcement in Parliament today, possibly the calling of a general election, Reuters reported.

UN Failure Soviet Aim Says Adlai

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union today demanded the removal of United Nations' secretary-general Dag Hammarskjöld "as an accomplice and organizer" of the slaying of deposed Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba.

In a sharp attack before the UN General Assembly, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko also called for the termination of the UN operation in the Congo within one month and a thorough structural overhauling of the world organization.

He warned that the United Nations may suffer the same fate as the League of Nations if it continues in its present course.

Due to the Congo crisis, he said, the world faced a situation similar to that on the eve of the Second World War.

CRITICIZES RUSS

U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson accused the Soviet Union of obstructing UN efforts in the Congo and of injecting into the debate "the most destructive spirit of the cold war."

"The Soviet Union does not want the United Nations to succeed in the Congo," Stevenson said.

Gromyko's demand for Hammarskjöld's dismissal was one of five major points he advanced as the 99-nation assembly began its new round of Congo debate.

The others included penalties against Belgium if it failed to withdraw all Belgian civilian and military personnel from the Congo immediately.

UN Civilians Get Go-Ahead

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—Premier Joseph Ileo offered today to let "several" UN civilians—but no troops—return to disputed Matadi to supervise the handling of supplies backlogged there.

Ileo's statement at a press conference did not indicate whether his government would allow the landing of new supplies in the strategic port.

'DON'T LET US HAVE HUMBUG'

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia said Monday night it is "monstrous" for member countries of the Commonwealth to sit in judgment upon one another.

"I am not Dr. Verwoerd," Menzies said. "I am not an apostle of apartheid—also I have my own immigration policy—but I am bound to say that I would not have left the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference later than Dr. Verwoerd left it."

"Don't let us have humbug. I would not tolerate being lectured by other people. There will not be any Commonwealth if it becomes a court with people on trial, because we shall all expel each other."

Menzies paid high tribute to Verwoerd's bearing, integrity and courtesy during the prime minister's conference.

IN THE LEGISLATURE

Spring came to Victoria Monday after a night of storm and tempest. Dogs barked, cats frolicked, rabbits scuttled, fish jumped, worms turned. Yet those higher beings who make up the B.C. Legislature were condemned to bandying words across a stuffy, over-heated chamber.

Ironically, much of the debate concerned this Great Outdoors of which we are so proud—and every member seemed determined to get his last two cents worth out of Hon. Earle Westwood and his recreation and conservation department.

Debate on Mr. Westwood's salary vote occupied all Thursday afternoon and was resumed Monday evening with the questions still coming thick and fast.

Rubicund Leo Nimsick (CCF—Cranbrook) said he had asked the minister a lot of questions and thought they should be answered.

"Perhaps he's lost his notes," joked CCF leader Robert Strachan.

"No, I haven't," said Mr. Westwood. "I tried to answer them, but it seemed whenever I got to my feet three or four members started talking at once."

The minister assured John Tisdalle (SC—Saanich) that there is no intention to pull down the old Victoria Courthouse on Bastion Square.

He said the public works department is surveying the building for extra office space, but it would also be preserved as a historic landmark of interest to tourists.

"We intend to make the most of it," he promised.

As more members picked on him, Mr. Westwood began to show signs of fatigue. He referred to one of them, CCFer John Squire, as the "honorable minister for Alberni."

"When do I collect my $12,000?" asked Mr. Squire.

Leo Nimsick, another CCF member, shared the joke, for last week Mr. Westwood addressed him as the "honorable minister for Cranbrook."

"I hope this isn't an omen," said Mr. Westwood in a lighthearted allusion to his mistake.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner had his voice back Monday.

"How's the volume?" he joked after addressing a sharp retort to the Opposition benches.

The Opposition laughed, for during Thursday's all-night hassle the minister's voice was reduced to a hoarse whisper from an attack of laryngitis.

"It saved you at least a full hour of debate," he told the Opposition in full clear tones.

Gordon Dowling waxed a little sarcastic over a bill to amend the government's Health Act. One clause said the government should have control over radiation sources and the reduction of hazards.

"We must have an all-powerful government if it can control such mighty forces," he said. "It means the cabinet must absolutely forbid the dropping of such things as atom bombs anywhere."

Premier Bennett recovered his familiar ebullient style during discussion of the government's equalization tax act.

"We deserve a lot of credit for this," he said, "but, of course, whatever you do, if it's something new, you won't get any thanks for it."

question cuts in estimates for fish and game conservation, which comes under Mr. Westwood's department.

Leaping to his feet, the premier declared no member had the right to suggest another member lacked courage.

The premier insisted on a withdrawal.

Mr. Nimsick replied that what he meant was that the members hadn't "more courage" to oppose cuts in the estimates.

'YAK, YAK, YAK'

When he declined to withdraw, the premier took back Mr. Westwood's salary vote and moved adjournment of the House.

"I forecast three minutes ago that he would do that," interposed CCF leader Robert Strachan.

"You are just trying to delay the session," retorted Premier Bennett.

"They just want to hear themselves pop," interjected Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi. "It is yak, yak, yak all the way."

"Loitering with the people's business," cried Dan Campbell (SC—Comox).

Mr. Strachan asked the premier to return the recreation department's vote for discussion, but the premier refused.

MUST RETURN

"Any time a member says a member lacks courage and will not withdraw we cannot continue," he said.

A spokesman for the UBC students said they had come to Victoria specially to hear "persistent public and private comment" with reference to the state of welfare in B.C.

"We are very disappointed," he added. "We have to return to Vancouver tonight, so we will not hear these comments."

Fire started in a living room chair caused an estimated $1,000 damage to the home of Mrs. Janet Christensen, 254 Michigan, at 10:45 p.m. Monday.

Mrs. Christensen was alone in the house at the time and was found by police and firemen in the kitchen in a dazed condition.

The five-room building was filled with smoke, which caused most of the damage.

Mrs. Christensen was cared for by a neighbor and did not require medical attention.

Firemen said living room furniture, including carpet and chestfield, was heavily damaged.

CANCER DRIVE AIM $335,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—A target of $335,000 has been set for the 1961 B.C. Conquer Cancer Campaign, it was announced Monday at the opening of the annual conference of the B.C. and Yukon Division of the Canadian Cancer Society.

The month-long fund drive will open April 1.

3 Cigars In a Row No Problem

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—Give Brenda Gail Phillips a good television program and a good strong cigar and she is the happiest four-year-old in Spartanburg.

When Brenda was an infant, she got into a can of chewing tobacco which belonged to her uncle. Instead of getting sick, she seemed to like the taste.

As she grew older, Brenda showed a fondness for tobacco in cigarette butts.

Her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Phillips, took her to a physician, who said Brenda apparently lacked something in her system. He said to let Brenda have tobacco once in a while.

Her father, a railroad telegrapher, once tried to break Brenda of the tobacco habit by giving her three strong cigars in succession.

But the child smoked each down to the butt without apparent discomfort.

viet demand for parity on the control commission which would police a treaty banning nuclear tests. He proposed that the commission be made up of 11 nations, instead of seven as originally suggested. Four of these nations would be from the West, four from the Communist bloc and three from uncommitted nations.

But this concession, Dean said, depends on agreement on a treaty providing for fast and efficient control without constant voting in the control commission which would tend to paralyze it.

Dean said the West now accepts a 1959 report by scientific experts proposing the joint use of satellites for high-altitude control of tests. This report has already been accepted by the Russians.

Dean said the only points on which the West is standing firm on its earlier proposals are:

1. The criteria necessary to call an on-site inspection.

2. The figure of 20 annual inspection teams by non-nationals of the country under examination.

Dean said the new proposals were worked out in close consultation with the British government. British delegate David Ormsby-Gore said that in the new proposals the West has made "every possible effort" to overcome obstacles to a treaty banning tests.

Bomb Tally 'Guesswork'

OTTAWA (UPI)—Defence Minister Harkness said today reports that the Soviet Union had 70,000 nuclear bombs were "pure guesswork."

Harkness also told the Commons he had no knowledge of any nuclear bomb, capable of wiping out Ontario from Ottawa to Windsor, "on the drawing boards anywhere in the world."

The defence minister made the comments in answer to a Toronto speech Monday by Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside of Victoria, chairman of the Canadian National Committee for the Control of Radiation Hazards.

Harkness said "a lot of the other statements" made by Keenleyside were "subject to very grave doubts."

Asked by Erhart Regier (CCF—Burnaby-Coquitlam) whether Canada's civil defence system was sufficient to withstand the threat of 70,000 Soviet nuclear bombs, Harkness said:

"Mr. Keenleyside has no more knowledge of how many bombs are held by Russia than most people in this House. I have no intention of saying what our estimate is, but Mr. Keenleyside's figure of 70,000 is pure guesswork with no foundation in fact."

Stabbing Murder In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—A man apparently committed by a bachelor hairdresser today was hacked and stabbed to death by an eight-inch knife.

Police said the murder was discovered by a neighbor of Barry Donaldson, 26, who had heard a piercing scream followed by the wild barking of Donaldson's toy French poodle.

The body was found sprawled on the bed of the victim's West End apartment. It was clad only in undershorts.

Donaldson died instantly, police said. There were three stab wounds in the chest, at least one of which punctured the heart.

Police said the murder was

Economy to Brighten By Summer—Pearson

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA—Liberal Leader Pearson held out hope Monday that Canada's economic picture may brighten by summer—with no credit due to the government.

He told the Commons there is a chance the recession may be over by the end of the year. "It may well be that in the second and third quarter we will get out of the trough of this depression in the summer and will begin to move up in the autumn," he said.

The Liberal leader peered at Canada's economic prospects in a Commons speech flogging the government's tax incentive program for new industries in areas of chronic unemployment.

He wondered how the government would take credit for curing a recession it would not admit existed, but added that "they are pretty agile at that kind of illogicality."

In the Liberal opposition's third grievance motion of the current session, he attacked the government's double-depreciation plan for industry as "ineffective," and called for a vote of non-confidence in the Progressive Conservative administration.

The Liberal non-confidence motion must come to a vote by 1 p.m. EST tonight—with the powerful government majority certain to swamp the opposition. The motion was creasing and each recession amendment urged the government to implement additional measures immediately to "stimulate employment and the further growth of our economy."

But the attack was ruled unacceptable by Speaker Roland Michener, who termed it "quite irrelevant" to the Liberal motion.

Later, Labor Minister Starr chided the Liberals for rushing forward with criticism of the double-depreciation plan without any alternative.

Since the plan was announced March 2, he told the House, the government has had inquiries from Cornwall, Windsor, Drumheller, Alta., and a "few other areas."

Finance Minister Fleming dodged another Liberal attempt to prove that a rift exists between the government and the Bank of Canada.

Opposition leader Pearson noted Mr. Fleming was reported to have told the Progressive Conservative annual meeting last week that relations between the government and the central bank should be "parallel and harmonious."

Are they? asked Mr. Pearson. Government policy is well known, Mr. Fleming said, introduced as the House went into a two-day supply debate.

While taking into account the possibility that "by the end of this year we will be out of this particular recession," Mr. Pearson said the problem of hard-core unemployment is a continuing headache to Canada. He added:

"The hard core of unemployment between recessions, between pauses, or whatever you want to call them, is increasing and each recession and each pause is worse than the one which preceded it."

Mr. Pearson put forward a six-point program to deal with the problem of areas of chronic unemployment.

It called for a federal area rehabilitation agency to work with the provinces and local authorities in an overall plan of economic aid to depressed areas.

It also urged a flexible fiscal policy, including capital grants for development, tax incentives for distressed areas, special public and winter works projects, easier vocational training and special urban renewal measures for blighted areas.

adding that the bank's policy was set out in the annual report of its governor, James E. Coyne, tabled in the Commons last week.

ORANGE BEST FOR HUNTERS

Scientific investigations show that the safest color for hunters to wear is "orange," Recreation Minister Earle Westwood told the legislature Monday.

Mr. Westwood said his department is trying to control noisy outboard motor boats which disturb fishing. It has asked the federal government to delegate more control of these boats to provincial authority.

Small Nations Urged to Reduce Arms

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk Monday urged that the world's small nations reduce their arms to the level needed for internal security.

He said this way they can avoid being drawn into "the larger arms race of the big powers."

Rusk, addressing charter day exercises at the University of California, also promised that the U.S. will enter nuclear test ban talks with Britain and Russia in Geneva today "with great seriousness of purpose."

'BURDEN ON ALL'

He said "The burden of arms can fall upon all nations, large and small." But he added that "while the so-called great powers are exploring the possibilities of major arms reductions, other nations may find that they, too, can review their situations, and make a useful contribution."

"There may be other nations," he said, "at some distance from the great centres of military power, who may find it to their advantage to undertake agreements among themselves to limit their arms to internal security purposes."

"Such agreements," Rusk said, "would help to prevent a diversion of resources sorely needed for economic and social development and would, in addition, make it less likely that they would be drawn into the larger arms race which we are trying to end."

Rusk's reference to countries "at some distance" from centres of military power suggested he may not be advocating arms reduction in countries perilously located near Communist borders.

On another subject, Rusk suggested the creation of a permanent United Nations force which could move in to restore peace where ever a crisis arises.

Rusk said "unnecessary or pointless irritations" between the U.S. and Russia should be removed in the interests of calming the cold war.

"The cold war," he said, "was not invented in the West; it was born in the assault upon freedom which arose out of the ashes of Second World War... the issues called the cold war are real and cannot be merely wished away. They must be faced and met."

Crusade for Humanity

PRESIDENT KENNEDY HAS reached deeply into the idealism of youth for the inspiration of his Peace Corps. He has probably found there the richest resource available in the Western World to serve mankind in under-developed countries.

The young people of the United States have responded. Within a few days of the announcement of his plan, 6,000 had applied to serve. The president hopes to have 500 or more people in the field by the end of the year. A figure of 50,000 college graduates has been mentioned as the possible number of volunteers each year.

The imaginative approach to providing help that will be appreciated by those who receive it has won the praise and possible support of Canadians. Mr. Pearson, Mr. Green and Mr. Argue have all spoken in its favor.

This is a call to dedication, to considerable hardship, to a fore-going of the easy life too often identified as the hallmark of North American society.

The young people who accept the hard life offered by the Peace Corps will receive little in pay, negligible concessions, if any, in the communities where they serve. Their task will be to teach, to help improve health conditions, assist in village development, in measures, among others, to increase agricultural production by assisting farmers to use modern implements and techniques, in helping the untaught to learn something of child care, modern processes of welding, irrigation, grain storage and the operation of community government.

These are not new fields of effort for North Americans in nations to which Colombo and Point Four plans have been introduced. The Peace Corps work differs, however, from earlier efforts in that the participants will join the people of the communities, instead of being super-imposed over them.

The members of the force will eat the food of the country, share the available living accommodation or what new shelter can be provided, will meet the men, women and children whom they are trying to help on a common level.

They will not operate as religious missionaries. Nor will they be connected in any way with the Central Intelligence Agency.

This is a task which could be undertaken successfully only by youth—and that particular type of youth fired with a desire to improve human welfare regardless of the material rewards.

The young people have, of course, great advantages over their elders in the field. They have—or they should have—a flexibility of mind free of the prejudice that so frequently comes with greater age. They have, or should have, an adaptability to meet circumstances and conditions radically different to those to which they have been accustomed.

They are not, to the same extent as many of their seniors, the prisoners of convictions which are not always valid.

These are characteristics expected of the Peace Corps. They should distinguish its members from the many other altruistic groups which have gone out to help unfortunate people in foreign countries.

It is incorrect to suppose that Point Four and Colombo Plans have failed because they did not in all cases reach directly to the people, rather than the governments, they were intended to assist. Many of them have been outstanding successes. But the new approach conceives a deeper penetration, a closer identification between the corps members and the foreign community—something that money alone cannot buy.

The concept is one to attract the hearts and minds of men of good will throughout the fortunate Western World—one to inspire many of our high-minded young Canadians who want to work for humanity beyond the ranks of troops in the cold war.

Flexibility Under a Limit

THE CITY COUNCIL HAS VERY properly rejected the idea of taking its 1961 budget fresh-frozen from the 1960 locker. It will not, as Alderman Mooney suggested it should, fix departmental estimates at last year's level and make departmental heads conform to this inflexible strait-jacket.

At the same time, members of the council were prompt to agree with the underlying idea which produced the Mooney suggestion. That idea was to keep municipal taxes down. It reflects a very sound attitude.

There must be a certain leeway in the city budget, elbow-room in which to add a little to one vote, take a little from another, though that need not necessarily run the total higher than it was in 1960.

Obviously the time has come for very close economy in municipal administration—an automatic development in the fiscal chain reaction that started in Ottawa.

The last dominion-provincial conference disclosed clearly that the federal government has ceased paying out more financial rope to the provinces. There is some stretch in the rope, but it has been snubbed down. Beyond certain fixed limits, provinces can get more money only by raising taxes—as they have done and are doing in British Columbia, with its new road users' fuel, tax, and in other provinces.

The pressure on the provinces automatically extends to their children, the municipalities. The fact that school costs to the latter will increase an average of one mill this year is only one indication of the trend.

To the municipalities, the financial stringency has been apparent for some time. Their taxes are as high as they should go and are already drawing sharp opposition from the homeowner in such gestures as the rejection of school building bylaws.

In their discussions last week, the mayor and aldermen showed a clear recognition of this fact. They also demonstrated an appreciation of the job before them in weighing departmental estimates to determine what is essential to the people they represent and what can be cut from preliminary budgets.

The detailed, tedious work involved is part of the task an alderman assumes when he is elected. It is also one of the educational elements in council membership. At few other times have all the aldermen such an opportunity to look closely into the detail of the different departments and thereby become familiar with civic operations beyond their own committees.

The responsibility before the council is to scrutinize all suggested expenditures, trim off the unnecessary and see that the people they represent, and whose money they spend, get the best value they can for the dollar. They can do that without freezing, item by item, this year's departmental estimates at last year's figures.

Pasternak Up, Ivinskaya Down

TOP-FLIGHT SOVIET WRITER, Ilya Ehrenberg has been busy purifying the memory of Boris Pasternak.

Mr. Pasternak did not intend "to bring damage to his country" by writing "Dr. Zhivago," says Mr. Ehrenberg. Nor did he suspect that "a bad political sensation would be made of his book and that his blow would inevitably be returned by another."

The poems in the novel, adds Mr. Ehrenberg, are "wonderful verses."

This is just one more step in the rehabilitation of the distinguished novelist who declined, under obvious pressure, a Nobel Prize for Literature following the publication of "Dr. Zhivago" outside Russia.

In the meantime, the character of Mrs. Olga Ivinskaya, close friend and collaborator of Mr. Pasternak, and for whose future he had, in his last days, held the gravest fears, continues to be blackened.

She is now in prison and the Soviet press depicts her as the evil influence imposed on the author during the last decade of his life.

The whole process seems a bit transparent.

'And His Cousins and His Aunts'

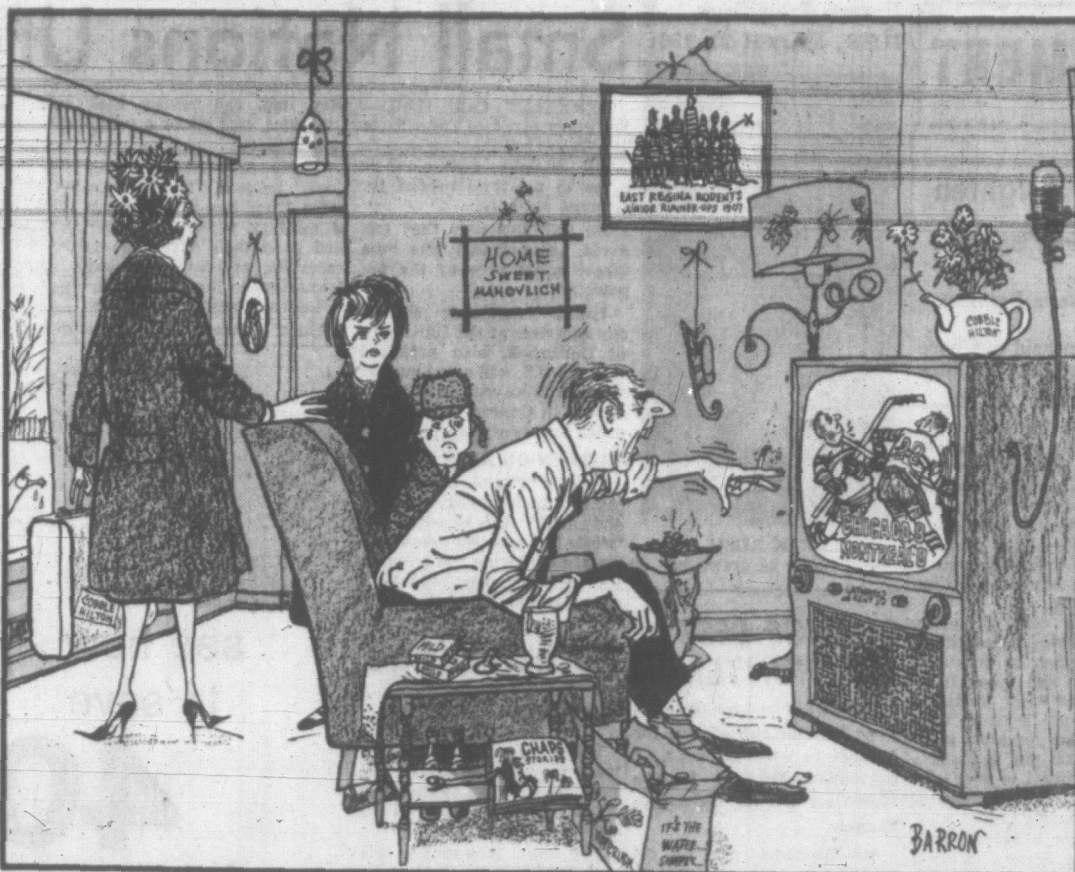

WHILE PRESIDENT KENNEDY, his Cabinet, Supreme Court, Senate and House leaders sat at the head table for Washington's annual Gridiron Dinner the other night, an impersonator of Senator Hubert Humphrey entertained in the Gilbert and Sullivan tradition.

"For 14 years he sought the top," sang the impersonator, "With much encouragement from Pop. It was a happy circumstance for him and his sisters and his cousins and his aunts . . . He wields the power the office grants. And so do his sisters and his cousins and his aunts."

Thus was the President of the United States and the nation's Commander-in-Chief serenaded during an evening of lampoon and satire.

Such events may not make the world safe for democracy. They help some, though.

FROM NEW YORK

By ALISTAIR COOKE

To Live Their Life, Talk Their Language

UNTIL President Kennedy proposed his Peace Corps, the New Frontier was an inspiring but empty horizon, like an Albert Jacob Miller landscape with the fur traders. Now, from Greenland's icy mountains and India's coral strand, we see thousands of blue-jeaned Stanleys and Livingstones meeting on many a palm plain, helping the natives to deliver their land "from error's chain."

It was never very good poetry but it was good enough, six days before the election, to stir the country and invigorate the image of Mr. Kennedy as a new, daring leader of the Western alliance.

Clarion Call
Once Mr. Kennedy corrected the impression that the corpsmen would be exempt from the call-up, nothing much was heard about the plan, and some Republicans even dismissed it as campaign oratory, until the President gave his clarion call to Congress to make the Corps a permanent and independent branch of the foreign service.

Since then the hard facts of the Corps have become well known. Most of the young men will be college graduates already qualified in some specialty that will ease their training in teaching, farm extension work, public health, sanitation, or nursing.

Instead of a suggested training period of anything from six weeks to six months, they will receive a minimum of four months indoctrination in the customs and culture of the countries to which they are assigned.

They will be paid no salary but receive housing, clothes, and food no better than that of the natives they serve. They will, however, have set aside for them a bonus, between $50 and $75, for every month of their service, and when they return to the United States they will be eligible for the draft unless they go "into socially useful work" that would normally exempt them.

While Mr. Kennedy has been putting flesh and bones on this missionary vision, more serious objections to it have been raised both in Congress and abroad. Representative Francis Bolton, a Republican expert on Africa, told a cheering audience of Republican women leaders that the Corps was "a terrifying thing."

She protested that it takes "at least a year" to train anyone for competent work overseas. She feared that "we will wreck the whole world if we do the job of aiding backward nations badly."

A Michigan Republican, Representative William Broomfield, raised the graver objection, in a letter to the President, against recruiting the Corps exclusively from young Democrats. So far the Administration has not denied that applications are to be cleared by the local Democratic Party organizations. This, said Mr. Broomfield, is tantamount to "carrying Tammany Hall politics into the foreign policy field."

Wisconsin Idea

The origin of the Corps has been little commented on. But because, whether it succeeds or fails, it will go down in the history books as a Kennedy brainwave, its conception in the mind of a Democratic Congressman from Wisconsin ought to be set down for the record.

It all began in 1947 in a village in Cambodia. Representative Henry Reuss ran across four young American teachers setting up an elementary school. They worked and lived with the villagers and they talked their language. They endured naivety and ignorance with almost saintly patience and made a fine impression on the people they were sent to help.

Sent by whom? It is a good question, for the answer shows that since the late 1940s there has been an international Peace Corps, of unselfish and immensely able men and women, young and old, of all nations, working in remote places and on immense trans-continental projects, all under the flag of the United Nations, either as workers in Technical Assistance or as staff members of UNESCO.

Military Only

Mr. Reuss fell to thinking and regretting that American help to Cambodia was advertised to the world only by military aid. When he got home he spoke to the students of Cornell University and wondered how many of them would, if they had the chance, volunteer for a "Point Four Youth Corps."

He got a terrific response and accordingly introduced a Bill in the House to have a survey made on the feasibility of a national Youth Corps. The late Senator Richard Neuberger did the same thing in the Senate.

Both Bills passed, but they went only so far as to assign the University of Colorado to a further study of the plan.

Last June Senator Hubert Humphrey latched on and introduced another Senate Bill actually to create "a Youth Peace Corps." By then the voters of West Virginia had convinced Senator Humphrey that he was not going to be President, so he threw in his lot with Senator Kennedy and contributed the Peace Corps idea.

Mr. Kennedy was staggered at the mail he got, from Humphrey fans, urging him to mobilize Hubert's peaceful army. He buried the idea for several months and dug it out and then floated it, quite casually, as a trial balloon at San Francisco. The rest is history, or soon will be.

Questions British Check-Off

I question the facts of your editorial in which you state that the British Parliament passed a law compelling an employer to make deductions from a worker's pay for the use of a political party provided a union asked him to do so.

To my knowledge all trade union dues which used to include one penny per week from each member as a contribution to the Labor Party funds were collected by the union treasurer direct from the members, outside of working hours and usually at the union headquarters.

To deduct any union dues except on the written authority of the employee would have been contrary to Section 3 of the Trade Act.

The "contract out" amendment by the Labor Government referred to the political fund contribution included in the payment of dues by the member to the union and as far as I am aware, employers in the United Kingdom do not make check-off of union dues.

The law was further amended by the Churchill government and a trade unionist is required to "contract in" or voluntarily offer to pay contributions to the political fund when paying his union dues.

Educated and Jobless

I have been reading the many articles which have come out in the past few months on the unemployment problem in B.C.

In the majority of these articles it is said that the ranks of the unemployed are composed of uneducated and improperly trained personnel. According to an article in the March 8 edition of your paper, 80 per cent of Victoria's 5,700 unemployed never completed high school.

I am 21 years old and have been unemployed for five months. I have high school graduation as well as two years of university education. Now, if education is the problem, why am I unable to find employment? The B.C. government stresses the importance of education, but it seems to me that this is just another of the many excuses Mr. Bennett uses to bypass difficult situations. Mr. Bennett also likes to "pass the buck" and blames the federal government for the unemployment problem. The sooner we vote in a competent premier, the quicker we will have the unemployment problem solved.

What we need is more industries to create new jobs in B.C. and the rest of Canada. Every year our country spends a fantastic sum on defence. It should be easy to see that a country of some 18,000,000 people will not be able to defend itself in case of a war, no matter how much is spent on weapons. This money and that spent on aid to foreign countries could be better used in creating work and benefits for the unemployed in our own country.

A law should be passed whereby anyone striking for higher pay would immediately lose his job and the position filled by an unemployed citizen. Also, since we do have so many people unemployed, I think we should cease all immigration from foreign countries until our present population is completely employed.

The sooner the citizens of B.C. realize that unemployment is the most serious problem facing our country today, the quicker they can work out a solution together. It requires everyone's attention, not just the unemployed.

'Iniquitous Vandalism'

The Hon. Mr. Bennett, Premier, is to be heartily commended on his recent delaying action on the Columbia River power scheme. May he take any further action that will result in this most iniquitous piece of vandalism being abrogated.

The flooding of some 42,000 acres of land, ruining one of the most beautiful valleys in the province, dispossessing about 8,000 people of their homes, is surely the wickedest project ever thought up by a group of money-crazy politicians for the ruination of their own country, and all for the temporary and altogether dubious financial profit that may accrue.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"AN' KEEP AN EYE ON JOEY, 'CAUSE I CAN'T WATCH HIM ALL THE TIME!"

Remembered Continent

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

LATIN AMERICANS have long complained that since the war they have received only a tiny fraction of the United States aid which has been poured out lavishly on Europe and Asia—often on countries with no love for the U.S.—in the evident hope of wooing them away from Communism.

Now President Kennedy has asked Congress to appropriate $600 million for a Latin American development program on the lines of the Marshall Plan, to be known as the Alliance for Progress.

It might be thought that the Latins would rise up and cheer at this evidence of the good intentions of the new U.S. administration. In fact the response has been muted and cautious. Why?

There are several reasons, the first of which is that the gesture has come too late. If it had been made immediately after the war it would probably have been accepted with enthusiasm. At that time Europe, a continent which still enjoys more Latin American respect than any other, was receiving massive U.S. aid under the original Marshall Plan, and Latin Americans could have accepted similar assistance without loss of face.

Goodwill Remained

At the same time, the enormous fund of goodwill caused by President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "Good Neighbor Policy" had not yet been dissipated. Latin America had not yet become, in the words of a Chilean newspaper, "the continent that Harry Truman forgot."

Further the United States was still regarded as one of the major participants in a war fought against a system which the overwhelming majority of Latin Americans detested, a war in which the largest Latin American nation, Brazil, had played a considerable part. The middle 1940s were the highest point ever reached in U.S.-Latin American relations.

But the Truman Administration, understandably perhaps, was too preoccupied elsewhere to take advantage of the opportunity. The Eisenhower Administration altered this negative policy to one which provoked active Latin American anger.

This was symbolized by the overthrow of the elected Guatemalan Government in 1954 by a military adventurer enjoying the full and open backing of the U.S. Government.

Not Satisfactory

This "interventionism" was justified on the grounds that Jacobo Arbenz's left-wing regime in Guatemala was opening the way to Communist penetration in the Americas, and that its overthrow was a measure of "hemisphere defence" as provided for in the charter of the Organization of American States. This explanation did not satisfy the Latin Americans.

In the first place they were much less worried about Communism than their northern neighbor.

Secondly, they regarded the relevant clause in the charter as applying to a state of war, which did not exist.

Finally, the whole action was too vividly reminiscent of the discredited "Big Stick" policy of President Theodore Roosevelt at the turn of the century.

Resentment at the time was not translated into action, because the Latin American governments were too dependent economically on the U.S. to protest openly, but it is significant that at the Caracas Conference of the O.A.S. shortly before the final overthrow of the Arbenz government, a Guatemalan motion against U.S. interference was voted down—but its proposer got the loudest applause of the session. And the whole business left a distrust of U.S. motives which extended to offers of assistance; where, Latins wondered, was the catch.

Of course Kennedy is not Eisenhower, and he has gone out of his way to stress that the proposed program has no political strings, but suspicion remains. This is heightened by the fact that some such program was first suggested by the Eisenhower administration at the Bogota meeting of the O.A.S. last September—a meeting called principally to discuss measures for the combating of Communism in Latin America. This ancestry has done President Kennedy's plan no good.

Strings Suspected

Finally, it has come at a time when neutralism is becoming a serious force in Latin America. Few Latin Americans want to follow Cuba into virtual alliance with the Communist bloc. But a great many wish to avoid too close an entanglement with either side in the cold war.

In these circumstances, it is hardly surprising that there have been no resounding hosannas for Mr. Kennedy's plan. Latin America needs investment and technical aid, but she wants them on her own terms—and from more varied sources.

What from Washington may look like generous assistance can too easily be seen from Lima or Brasilia as disguised colonialism, or as a bribe to support the United States in the cold war. (London Observer Service)

ENCOURAGEMENT

It seems to me that there is no human activity as worthwhile as the encouragement of others—taking time off from one's own affairs to help a fellow creature deal with life. It's much better than actually doing things for him because it gives him the eventual pride of having had the strength and courage to overcome a difficulty himself.

NEVER THE SAME

If two paintings ascribed to a great master look identical, it is more than likely that at least one of them is a copy by another hand. The rule is as valid in the study of art as it is in the study of handwriting. A man's signature varies because he writes spontaneously. If two signatures are exactly the same, one of them is suspected of being forged.

'A Rest for His Mind'

I lost the thing at the boat-side after 20 minutes of nerve-tangling contest. I had left my gaff at home and the salmon was a little smarter than I.

Apart from that one fish, I hooked and landed a baker's dozen grilse during the entire year. Though I am not a fish-eater, they brought satisfaction and gustatory delight to friends to whom I gave them. No grilse, apart from those under 12 inches which the law made me throw back, was wasted.

Frankly, when it comes to catching fish, I'm not very good—nor since I was a boy anyhow. But this makes me one of the best conservationists around here, and I do like fishing.

It's a sort of therapy for me. Out fishing the petty worries seem to drop away. The unkind thoughts directed against someone who has displeased me seem to evaporate.

Edgar Guest once reported that a fellow isn't thinking mean out fishin'. I go him one better. Out fishin' I don't even think, mean or otherwise. What passes for my brain sleeps gently.

I find myself in close accord with Isaac Walton's quotation from Sir Henry Wotton about angling: "Twas an employment for his idle time, which was then not idly spent, a rest to his mind, a cheerer of his spirits, a diverter of sadness, a calmer of unquiet thoughts, a moderator of passions, a procurer of contentedness, that begat habits of peace and patience in those that professed and practised it."

While I indulged in this philosophy, it had not occurred to me that I was taking the bread from someone's mouth by fishing when I was lucky. On the contrary, I thought I was putting fish in the mouths of others—again when I was lucky.

Dr. Sol Sinclair, professor and head of the department of agricultural economics and farm management at the University of Manitoba, raises some doubt on that score when he cites commercial fishermen's views in his study of economic fisheries management in British Columbia.

Dr. Sinclair lists the catch of sports fishermen in British Columbia from 1953 to 1958, showing it had doubled to a total of 408,800 fish in the latter year. During the same time, his figures indicate that the catch of sports fishermen had risen from nearly 5 per cent of the commercial catch in 1953 to more than 9 per cent in 1958 and, as a percentage of the catch by commercial trollers, had trebled in the same period.

That means, Dr. Sinclair points out, that commercial fishermen are facing an increasing challenge by sports fishermen in harvesting the allowable catch. Some fish must, of course, escape to spawn and renew the cyclical runs.

This is only one of the problems confronting commercial fishermen. By improving their boats, their equipment and their methods, commercial men catch more fish in a shorter time now than they used to. Consequently their fishing is restricted, sometimes to two days a week, in order to permit escapement.

And because a large number of commercial men are in the business, the share each gets of the harvest is smaller than it would be if the number were much less.

But the sports fisherman provides increasing competition.

The question, it seems to me, is this: Is fishing to be considered primarily as an industrial undertaking and the non-economic values of sports fishing ignored?

A hard core of commercial fishermen are fishermen all their lives. Many others go into and out of the business as it appears attractive or otherwise to them.

Sports fishing is not economical for the angler. It isn't supposed to be. A man does not figure his time, the price of his gear, his losses and his purchases as investments in a profit-making activity. He fishes because he likes fishing—and probably pays several dollars a pound for every fish he catches, if he counts his time of monetary value.

And the catch of sporting fishermen is seldom wasted. It is eaten—just as the fish the housewife buys over the counter. If the sports fisherman is eliminated entirely—with considerable economic loss to the country—the tough competition among commercial fishermen themselves will probably continue. And if the sports fisherman is discouraged, or charged a licence for salt water trolling, whose fish is he paying for?

Old Isaac isn't around to answer that one.

Dry Rot Chased Out For Princess, Tony

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret and her husband Antony Armstrong-Jones, will move into a new house once workers have repaired the ravages of dry rot and the war, it was disclosed today.

Buckingham Palace announced Queen Elizabeth has offered her sister and brother-in-law a "grace and favor" residence at Kensington Palace which should be ready for occupation by the end of 1962.

RENT-FREE

"Grace and favor" residences are homes granted rent-free by the sovereign to members of the Royal Family or household or to distinguished servants of the state.

The couple's new home—larger than their present Kensington Palace residence—stands in an area built by Sir Christopher Wren around 1690.

Officials said it will cost £70,000 ($196,000) to restore the home, damaged by bombs in the war and weakened by "a lot of dry rot."

The house, at 1-A Kensington Palace, has 20 main rooms and is next door to the residence of the Duchess of Kent, the Queen's aunt.

'I'll Punch You' Threat Hurlled

REGINA (CP)—A 45-minute shouting-match exploded in the Saskatchewan Legislature Monday night, climaxed by the threat of A. H. McDonald (L—Moosemin) to punch provincial treasurer Woodrow Lloyd in the nose.

There was no bloodshed in spite of many angry words.

The rowdy session erupted over the normally prosaic estimate of the department of agriculture.

Mr. McDonald was flailing the government for not buying many of its cars from small dealers throughout the province and for not giving servicing business to these dealers.

He accused the government of favoring its "friends," the big automobile dealers, and said the CCF was "the friend of big business."

"You have no thought for the small businessman," he cried.

Mr. Lloyd said quietly that Mr. McDonald's assertion could be proven wrong "by facts."

Mr. McDonald began to protest and Mr. Lloyd shouted that he should sit down for a while and listen.

"I can stand here if I like," the Liberal said.

"I can stand here as long as my honorable friend," the provincial treasurer shouted.

Mr. McDonald yelled that Mr. Lloyd could not accuse him of telling an untruth.

"I'll punch you in the nose," he growled at Mr. Lloyd.

The treasurer said: "Just come right over here."

These words and threats were shouted above the cries of most of the other 54 members; who raised a din of "sit down, sit down."

TURNING POINT IN S.A. DECISION

Afro-Asians Stiffened When Envoys Ruled Out

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Why, finally, did South Africa decide to leave the Commonwealth? The question seems worth asking, if only for the record. So far, accounts differ on how the fateful decision came to be made.

British reports of the closed conference sessions suggest that South Africa could have remained in the Commonwealth if she had been willing to offer one millimetre of concession.

Premier Hendrik Verwoerd retorts that he was in effect frozen out by the vindictiveness of some countries, namely Canada and the Afro-Asian nations.

He says that he was all set to sign a Commonwealth statement outlining the condemnation by the other countries of racial discrimination.

What, then, went wrong? What is the true story?

Allowing for the fact that private meetings between the leaders of 11 countries, on a subject that arouses strong partisan feelings, are bound to lead to varying accounts of proceedings, it seems reasonable to give this outline of the events that forced out South Africa:

All the countries present were willing to keep South Africa in the Commonwealth and sought sincerely for a formula that would make it possible.

Verwoerd valued the Commonwealth association highly and he, too, tried hard for a solution.

Last Wednesday, after two and one-half days of dignified but tense discussion, rare in the history of Commonwealth conferences, it seemed certain that the "club" would remain intact. Negotiators had come up with a "piece of paper" containing a conference communiqué apparently acceptable to all.

Then by some odd chemistry of the conference, some inter-action of personality, the picture changed. Perhaps the decisive factor was that it became clear that Verwoerd did not intend to allow non-white diplomatic missions in South Africa.

Since consultation is the life-blood of the Commonwealth, this was regarded as a cardinal point. The attitude of the Afro-Asians suddenly stiffened. There were indications by some members that they would continue to raise, at future conferences, the question of South Africa's race policies.

Some hinted they might have to leave the Commonwealth if South Africa remained.

It became clear to Verwoerd that the issue was fundamental, that there was no point remaining in an association many of whose members had so clearly indicated that South Africa's presence was an embarrassment.

To other members, it became clear that no compromise, no form of words, would do any lasting good.

In broad terms, that may be a reasonably accurate version of how the Commonwealth took the hard way out in relinquishing one of its founder members. It was, as the magazine the Economist says, a "curiously stirring" episode, one greatly in contrast with the Commonwealth's usual method of solving problems by simply taking no decision at all.

Queen's Bust Cut From Park Budget

City parks committee money is requested for seven comfort stations, Douglas St. lighting and irrigation in Beacon Hill Park, a new entrance and carved log sign for the park, an ornamental pool and other items.

Practically all of the increase in the $600,000 departmental estimate involves new projects. Equivalent to almost two mills, the extra

Among the cuts was a proposed $1,100 expenditure for a bronze statue of Queen Elizabeth to replace the oft-damaged concrete bust. Committee hopes that the replacement can be made as an intermunicipal project.

In addition, committee members recommended approval of virtually the same $150,000 budget for the health department that was passed last year.

But increases of some $32,000 were sought in a social welfare estimates totalling $1,170,000 which will only cost the city some $282,000 because of provincial grants.

Ald. M. H. Mooney, chairman of parks committee, said the increases were unavoidable.

First elected to the British House of Commons in 1935, Canadian-born Sir Beverly Baxter, 70, said Monday he will not be a candidate in the next general election. "I've been in Parliament for 25 years now and there comes a time when one must make room for younger men," he said. Sir Beverly joined the London Daily Express in 1920. In the next 13 years he rose through various posts until he became editor-in-chief and director of the newspaper.

Federal Curbs on Union Dues For New Party Urged by Firms

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Canadian Construction Association suggested today to Prime Minister Diefenbaker that a review of the status of union dues be made in light of the impending formation of the New Party.

"Care should be taken that such dues are not used as political contributions," it said. The association, representing over 1,250 firms, said any portion of union dues transferred to a political fund should not be deductible from income tax as are dues at present.

"It is suggested that the federal government maintain a close watch on future development in this field," it said.

The association, in its annual brief to the government, said the bill of rights is incomplete because it does not contain protection of the right to work without union affiliation. It said "monopoly control" over skilled labor by some unions "adversely affects" the freedom of the individual to work without being a union member.

"A number of building trade unions have succeeded in establishing an effective monopoly over the supply of skilled labor," the 54-page submission said. "This situation rules out the possibility of equitable relationships between management and labor."

The association also asked that unions be vested by statute with legal status so that they could be sued.

DECISION NEXT WEEK ON VANCOUVER RACING

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Racing Commission will announce next Monday whether the city will have 40 or 80 days of racing this summer.

The Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association last Friday decided to stick with demands for $1,025 minimum purses.

The association said it would race 40 days under that structure rather than 80 days at a reduced rate of $900.

The $900 offer was made in the B.C. Jockey Club, a merger of the B.C. Turf and Country Club and the Asot Jockey Club which had planned 80 days of racing and a basic purse schedule of $682,800.

Last year the HBPA and the Asot Jockey Club signed a two-year contract calling for minimum purses of $1,025. Turning down a Racing Commission arbitration offer, the horsemen said they will fulfil their contract—40 days for $1,025 minimum purses.

Neither the B.C. Jockey Club nor the HBPA had made a compromise move.

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—I asked Sonny Liston what he thought of Floyd Patterson.

"I think he is a great champion," he replied as if he had rehearsed this falsehood with an actor's care.

He noticed my astonishment. The laughter made his immense body tremble.

"You don't mean that?" I said.

"No," he said. "He's afraid of me. I view it this way. He's just using any excuse so that he don't have to fight me. He's worrying about who manages me. I ain't worried about who's managing him."

The mob is supposed to own Liston, who has done jail time for crimes of violence. He is considered the best heavyweight in the effete division. But Patterson will not fight him, the champion has stated, unless he is handled by people whose respectability is guaranteed.

"Is Blinky Palermo your undercover manager?" I asked.

"I have a contract with Pep Barone," he said. "That's who I signed with and that's who I get my orders from. I mean who I get the fights off."

"Have you asked Barone to sell your contract?"

"What can I do?" he asked.

We were sitting at a table in the coffee shop of the Hadson Hotel on the Beach. Although Liston has difficulty reading and writing, a red-tipped ball-point pen was clipped to the pocket of his blue plaid sports shirt which bulged with a notebook.

"Patterson's got a contract with Cus D'Amato," said Liston. "Cus' name's on it. I'm quite sure he don't sit up all night and watch Cus. He don't sleep with Cus all night to see what he's doing every minute."

"Are you going to stick with Barone?" I asked.

"He's been good to me as far as it goes," Liston said. "I've found nothing wrong with him. He helped me this far."

"You have no future," I said, "as long as Barone manages you."

"I'll keep fighting," he said.

"With whom?" I asked.

"I don't know," he answered. "I think public opinion should force Patterson to fight me. They can see he is making excuses. I done time. But after a man pays his debt to society, I don't see why he should pay with the rest of his life. Anyways, I'm the one whose going to be fighting him. Just the two of us is fighting, no one else."

He glanced at the diamond ring on his left pinky which is as large as a ball park hot dog.

"He didn't have them other guys investigated," Liston said. "He should of investigated Pete Rademacher, who was an amateur. An amateur fighting a professional, he could get hurt bad. Did he investigate that?"

Floyd's Using Angles, Says Barone

Barone sat down at the table, a tense, gaunt-faced man. "He don't want to fight my guy," the manager said. "He's just using all them angles."

"He must be the NBA," Liston said. "They take away Archie Moore's title. They take away Ray Robinson's title. They don't fight certain guys. But Patterson, he don't want to fight me, he does what he wants."

"Have you had any offers for Liston's contract?" I asked Barone.

"I've had people ask me if I wanted to sell," Barone said. "I had one offer. Some guy named Relfy, from New York. He wanted to give up $100,000 for a million-dollar proposition."

"Are you Blinky Palermo's front man?" I asked.

"I have a contract with Sonny," he said. "Sure, I done business with Blinky. I was promoting in Allentown. Blinky had all the good fighters. I had to deal with him. Who else in the boxing business didn't?"

"Would you sell the contract if you had a good offer?" I addressed the manager.

"I'm no piece of furniture," said Liston, suddenly angry. "I'm no hog or dog to auction off. You want Cus to be my manager? I feel Pep took a chance when he first got me. I was doing nothing then. Am I supposed to make him pick his friends, my manager?"

In his last important fight, Eddie Machen lasted 10 rounds with him.

"Machen run," Liston said. "But I don't think Patterson would run like him. Ain't Patterson got pride? Ain't that what they say? If he's got pride, why ain't he fighting me? How could he have pride without fighting me?"

He sat there, big and uncomfortable in the coffee shop, chair and I said he looked fat.

"I'm 220," he said. "If I'm fighting, I'd weigh 211. He has never been knocked down."

"I've never even been wobbled up," he said. "Close to wobbled up, he hit me good, right on the nose. But I don't wobble up."

He is a slow-moving pug who comes behind a left jab and uses a clubbing right.

"Isn't Patterson easy to hit with a right hand?" I said.

"You know why I ain't going to hit Patterson with no right hands?" he said.

"No," I answered.

"Because he ain't going to get in there and fight me," he said.

He laughed, as if this were very funny.

One of Soviet Horses Out of Steeplechase

LONDON (AP)—One of the three Russian entries was withdrawn Monday as Britain's top bookies made Merryman II a strong favorite to win the second National Steeplechase for the second straight year—something no horse has done for 25 years.

The last horse to win the four and one-half mile race over 30 tough obstacles two times in a row was Reynolds-town in 1935-36. Merryman will get his chance Saturday.

The Russians called in a veterinarian Monday and decided that Epigraff will not start. The horse has muscular pains in his hind legs.

The other two Russian entries—Relief and Grif—are expected to go to the post. But they were quoted at 50 to 1 and more by Britain's bookies Monday night.

Merryman was made a clear 10 to 1 favorite.

Cats Call Two Juniors To Aid in Closing Drive

Victoria Cougar coach George Agar went out on an insurance policy buying spree Monday.

Injuries, lackadaisical performances as well as the improved prospects of the team finishing in the Western Hockey League playoffs prompted Agar to call up two junior standouts.

Scheduled to arrive in Victoria today on an amateur try-out basis are centre Ed Lawson and left-winger Don Makaw, both standouts in the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League this season.

PLAY FRIDAY

Agar said at least one of the two—possibly both—youngsters will dress for Friday's game at Memorial Arena against Seattle Totems.

Lawson, 20, was the leading scorer in the Saskatchewan League while performing with Melville Millionaires. Makaw, also 20, but a product of Saska-toon's junior Quakers, attended Cougars' training camp last fall.

The Victoria coach failed to get a long look at the youngster because of a dislocated shoulder Makaw suffered in a collision with defenceman Don McLeod.

STILL AILING

The condition of centre Barrie Ross, suffering from a recurrent back injury, and defenceman Leo Amadio, who is undergoing treatment for pulled leg muscles, was among the reasons Agar recalled the pair.

As well, the coach feels some of his players have been performing below par.

"I'm going to have a good look at these kids," said Agar. "If they live up to advance notices, then I can always use them in the playoffs."

"They'll be my insurance." Playoffs will be uppermost in the Cougar players' minds Friday. A victory over Seattle will all but wrap up the sixth and last playoff berth.

BOXLA BOYS WORKING OUT

Victoria's Inter-City Lacrosse League team will hold its second workout of the season in the Mount View High gym tonight, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Coach Arnie Ferguson said the team will be held regularly Tuesdays and Thursdays.

SHADE BETTER

"I don't know what we're going to do about those two," said Ivan. "We'll decide at our final meeting today. But we can't put all our eggs in one basket. If we concentrate too much on stopping Beliveau and Geoffrion, someone else is bound to break loose on you."

"I'd say we're a shade better going into the playoffs this year than last year, both mentally and physically, but the loss of McDonald and the uncertainty of Mikita could hurt us badly."

The speculation was that, if given the chance, Pilous would put his top checking unit of Murphy, Nesterenko and either Tod Sloan or Eddie Litzenberger on the Montreal's big line.

Oil Kings Extend Playoff Streak

EDMONTON (CP)—Eight consecutive playoff hockey victories have sent Edmonton Oil Kings into the Western Canada junior hockey semifinals against Regina Pats.

The eighth straight win came Monday night with an 8-0 victory over Trail-Rossland Smoke Eaters. It followed earlier 6-3, 7-4 and 11-0 wins and enabled Kings to sweep past British Columbia's first junior hockey representative in 10 years in straight games in their best-of-seven quarter-final series. Earlier, Edmonton achieved a similar record against Lethbridge Native Sons in the Alberta playoffs.

Hawks Must Stop Boomer, Big Jean

Habs Favored To Make It Six in a Row

MONTREAL (UPI)—Record-minded Montreal Canadiens, seeking an unparalleled sixth consecutive Stanley Cup championship, tonight open their best-of-seven National Hockey League semifinal series against the Chicago Black Hawks.

Canadiens, their fourth straight league title safely in the trophy case, meet the third-place Black Hawks in the semifinals for the third year in a row. In the previous two playoffs, the favored Habitants won eight of 10 starts, including a four-game sweep a year ago.

And the oddsmakers are convinced the Flying Frenchmen will make it to the finals for the 11th consecutive year. They quoted the Canadiens 1½-goal favorites to win the opening game; 3½-to-1 selections to win the semifinal series and 2-to-1 choices to win Lord Stanley's battered bowl once again.

The Habitants obviously are unimpressed with the fact that only the Hawks among Montreal's five opponents were able to play them to a standstill in their 14 regular season meetings. Each team won five and tied four while splitting 80 goals down the middle.

"What's more important," said Chicago coach Rudy Pilous, "is that we won three of those five games in their building."

TWO REGULARS OUT

"We won't have the psychological barrier playing in the Forum we might have had in previous years," added general manager Tommy Ivan, And beating them, (4-1) Saturday night here without two of our regulars—Ab McDonald and Stan Mikita—may give us a lift."

McDonald, a former Hab, is hospitalized here with the hives, the result of an allergy to an antibiotic. "They tell us he'll probably be out of action the rest of the week," Pilous disclosed.

Mikita, a 19-goal scorer who really came into his own in the second half of the season with 14 goals, has been sidelined for the past two games with a bruised ankle, he was scheduled to give it a final test this morning before deciding whether he will go tonight.

LINE TO WATCH

Montreal had only one doubtful starter in its star-studded lineup: Dickie Moore. The high-scoring left-winger, who missed the last 13 games of the season with a fracture of a small bone in his left foot, also put off making any decision until today. The veteran two-time former scoring champion, who can play any of the three forward positions, scored 35 goals in 57 games, six of them against Chicago. But the line that the Hawks will have to watch the closest is the Beliveau-Geoffrion unit.

Bernie "Boom-Boom" Geoffrion, the league scoring champion with 85 points, is only the second man in NHL history to score as many as 50 goals a season. He did it this year in a final rush in which he counted 18 goals in 13 games and then failed to break the record shared with Maurice Richard in his final two games. Big Jean Beliveau is the ace playmaker in the league. He scored 32 times and picked up a record 38 assists.

LEAFS AILING

Wings Still Have Howe

TORONTO (CP)—It's Stanley Cup time again and Toronto Maple Leafs are sick, sick, sick.

But a clean bill of health has eluded them most of the season and they still managed to finish a scant two points behind first-place Montreal Canadiens.

Here is the injury list as the Leafs prepare to open the best-of-seven National Hockey League semifinal in Maple Leaf Gardens Wednesday night against Detroit Red Wings.

Goaltender Johnny Bower, Vezina Trophy winner, is a questionable starter with a pulled muscle in his right leg.

Right winger George Armstrong also is a toss-up with torn knee ligaments.

THREE OUT

Three are definitely out: Defenceman Bobby Baun—the skate cut in the chin and throat suffered Sunday night at New York will keep him on the sidelines about 10 days.

Centre Red Kelly—the Leafs' ace playmaker is recovering from a groin injury and will miss at least the first four games.

Right winger Eddie Shack—a skate cut for 30 stitches above and below the left knee suffered in Saturday's game against Boston Bruins will keep him off skates for a week.

REPLACEMENT NEEDED

One replacement was called for. Steve Kraftcheck moves up from Rochester Americans of the American League to fill in for Baun for the first game. At 32, Kraftcheck has spent most of his time in the AHL but had an eight-game stretch with Toronto in the 1958-59 season.

Until Bower's status is a questionable starter with a pulled muscle in his right leg, Right winger George Armstrong also is a toss-up with torn knee ligaments.

Pats, and Not Future, Navy's Only Worry Now

Talk of expansion weaves into Commercial Hockey League discussions, but the pattern doesn't interest Navy at the moment even though the sailors admit to having a few long-range plans of their own.

Navy, bidding for its third straight championship, is more interested in the CHL final against Pattersons. The best-of-five series opens on Memorial Arena ice tonight at 8.30.

At least two other teams now are anxious to bid for berths in the circuit, which also includes Victoria TAA. They are Nanaimo and Victoria College.

At the moment, however, the outside teams would probably receive a cool reception when they come knocking for an invitation. There are several reasons and among them is one that suggests the potential strength, or lack of it, would do the league more harm than good.

Lt. Jay Rangel, Navy manager, is of the opinion "next year is a long way off."

TEE TOPICS

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Only five from the list of previous winners of the Times Vancouver Island Open golf championships won't be on hand to try again, and the most notable absentee will be Bill McColl.

Proudest owner of the brightest red cap and droopiest knickers in town, William will be in Portland during the April 2 weekend and therefore would be unable to play in the first round of match play.

Even if he had entered, Bill insists, he doubts if he could qualify for the main event. It seems the "shanks" have caught up to him and the 1955 Island Open champion is decidedly unhappy about the condition of his game.

The other ex-champions missing will be Bob Fleming, Ted Colgate, Eric Hiberson and Bob Morrison. Neither Fleming nor Colgate have played any golf during the past few years and the veteran Morrison has been passing up more and more competitions in the past few years.

Hiberson, the only two-time winner of the title, had intended to compete but withdrew his entry at the weekend when he found earlier commitments will interfere with his golfing.

That's who won't be there. Those who have entered, however, still figure to make this annual event the best ever. The pro faction is well represented, including Cowichan's Mel Evans for the first time, and again the Island top amateurs are turning out with high hopes of claiming the Times Trophy, the exclusive blazer and the top prize.

The qualifying round is next Sunday.

Jasper Park Lodge pro Ron MacLeod, Bill Wakeham and Dr. George Bigelow will have to be considered strong threats for the Times Trophy after they finished 1-2-3, in that order, in the final monthly medal series.

MacLeod posted a fine 71 at Colwood Sunday to take the three-round series with a 226 total. Wakeham, the leader after two rounds, took a 74 to finish a stroke behind. Dr. Bigelow's final 75 gave him 133.

Shortly before entry forms appeared in The Daily Times, a Victoria golfer claiming membership at Ardmore asked if he was eligible to compete in the Island Open. That request put the tournament committee on the spot, since it is an event "open to all members of Island clubs."

However, the privately-owned Ardmore club has no official RCGA rating. Until it is officially rated, handicaps of the members of the club cannot be properly evaluated.

The golfer making the request was informed there was nothing to stop him from entering as a scratch player. A suggested alternative was that he establish a handicap immediately on one of the Victoria courses.

That last suggestion may have stretched the bounds of regulations, but the committee does not wish to discourage any golfer from entering. However, he must have an accredited handicap. The Ardmore player does not have one, so he decided not to enter.

Ardmore and the Up-Island Sunnydale club are the only two courses on the Island not affiliated with the B.C. body.

These clubs are missing several benefits by remaining outside the association, and there doesn't seem to be any reason except that they don't want to pay a small fee that amounts to, roughly, $1.50 per member per year.

It's unfortunate, but the only ones to suffer are the members of the club.

SHORT CHIPS—Sorry we missed it... Touring Oak Bay the other day with Bill Saunders and George Ford, we didn't hang around the second hole long enough to see John Remington hole his tee shot... Remington and Dick Flanagan followed us off the first tee... Bill Pinfold also counted an ace at Oak Bay, getting his on the eighth later in the week... That probably takes a lot of wind out of Ford's sails... He's been mighty proud of his shot to the same eighth green... George dropped his ball only 11 inches from the cup.

Bruce Blay and Bill Kane were the big winners in the lands' Robinson Trophy competitions Sunday. Bruce, 82-15-67, beat out Hugh Francis, 78-9-69, in the open event, while Kane, 81-11-70, took the senior trophy with a two-stroke margin over Sam Hill.

Fred Ranson and Jim Reside tied for low gross honors with 75s. At Gorge Vale, Mrs. Fred Groome and Watson Finley retained the Carlow mixed greensome trophy, with a net 69, a half-stroke better than the efforts of Sid Holland and Mrs. Bill Scott. Shirley Naysmith and Mike Warawa took low gross honors with a fine 82. Harry Means topped the field in Oak Bay's golf ball competition Saturday, while Lou Williams and Jack Lowe, tied for runner-up laurels.

"Beautiful recovery, Murray!"

'BEACH DRIVE HIGHLANDERS'

Fence-Sit on CD? Not Oak Bay

With Oak Bay Municipality there's no sitting on the fence about civil defence.

Monday, council gave a forthright "no" to a request by the Greater Victoria civil defence organization that Oak Bay, which pulled out in 1959, reconsider.

Reeve George Murdoch said CD generally was "going around in circles," so there would be little point of the municipality affiliating with the organization.

Rather, he suggested, Oak Bay should establish its own CD organization, as it did during the Second World War.

Coun. Allan Cox termed it "ridiculous" that a matter as important as civil defence be left to municipalities. On this basis senior governments had shirked responsibility, he said.

"We might as well form a militia and have the Beach Drive Highlanders."

Reeve Murdoch said if a municipal CD group was established, they would be available in emergencies and would collaborate with CD organizations in other areas.

BLUES SINGER HEADS SERIES OF NEW SHOWS

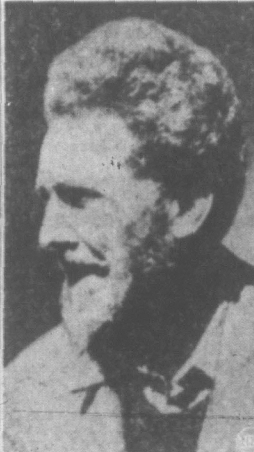

Lovely Eleanor Collins leads off a new series of entertainers scheduled for Club Tango by entrepreneur Ed Hicks.

The dusky Miss Collins brings her blues with a bounce Friday and Saturday nights with backing by the house group, the "Cubanares", led by the clarinet and flute of Bobby Hurst.

Hicks says special guests are planned one weekend each month, with shows this week at 9.30 and 11.30 p.m. each night. Doors are at 8.30 and there is dancing all evening.

With Hurst are Gordon Bean at the piano, George Porter on drums and Fred Wyatt playing bass and vibes.

Future possibilities, says Hicks include the Four Knights and exotic singer-dancer Grace Nigle.

ENDS SECLUSION

Coming down from his home in the Italian Alps, U.S.-born poet Ezra Pound, 75, emerged from seclusion Monday night to attend a meeting in Rome addressed by British pre-war Fascist leader Sir Oswald Mosley. Pound was released from U.S. mental hospital in 1958. At the end of the Second World War Pound was arrested in Italy by U.S. forces. During the war he made radio broadcasts in behalf of the Mussolini government.

Sweden's production of cars and commercial vehicles was a record 128,400 units in 1960.

PETERSON:

School Taxes Won't Soar

School taxes will not increase sharply in B.C. as a result of legislation approved in principle Monday, Education Minister Leslie Peterson promised.

"There is no sleeper here," he told the House, as his amendments to the Public Schools Act received second reading.

He agreed, however, there would be a tax boost for rural areas, from which a three-mill differential is being removed.

But Opposition MLAs feared confusion and misinterpretation of the new legislation.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said it was "legislation in the dark as far as the local people are concerned."

In any event, the government still was not providing a big enough share of school costs, now 50 per cent on a province-wide basis.

"Frankly, I don't think this is good enough," he said.

Leo Nimsick (CCF-Cranbrook) said it should be 55 to 60 per cent. He was afraid the new legislation would prove "a pig in the poke" because it included "so many unknown factors."

The present school finance formula is changed in the bill from a municipal contribution of 12 mills, rural nine, toward approved operating costs.

The new formula hikes the millrate to a standard of 16 but also increases the range of shareable operating costs. It also places a ceiling of 15 mill rate to a standard of 15 each year.

Mr. Peterson says the increased share of costs will make up for the mill rate increase.

Besides finance, the bill contains clauses implementing eight recommendations of the Chant royal commission on education.

'People Will Be Soaked'—Harding

These, including shifting Grade VII to elementary school, met the general approval of the Opposition.

Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay) summed up the MLAs' confusion on finance when he said it appeared the bill left unchanged the present cost split, but just increased the costs for everyone.

Said Mr. Peterson: "The purpose of these amendments is not to increase or decrease the share of the provincial government's contribution to school costs."

"The primary purpose is to ensure that government grants are distributed in a fair and equitable manner among the school districts as well as to provide a greater incentive for economy at the local level."

Randolph Harding (CCF-Kaslo-Slocan) said he was afraid that the school mill rate increase plus a new equalized assessment act yet to go through the House, would result in an over-all sizeable tax boost.

SCHOOL BOARD BRIEFS

City Pupils' Teeth 'Best in B.C.'

Greater Victoria school children have the best dental health in British Columbia, District 61 School Board was told Monday night.

This was indicated by a recently-released report of a B.C. dental health survey carried out in almost all school districts of the province.

Greater Victoria children had significantly fewer dental defects and dental caries, the report said. Most satisfactory ratio of population to dentists—1,786 to one—also was found here.

Board members voted to have a study made to find a suitable site for a new administration centre in line with a long-range plan to move from Craigdarroch Castle.

Non-resident student tuition fees will be boosted from $185 to $200 this fall, to meet increasing per-pupil costs.

Trustees agreed to permit The Castle Society to obtain estimates for floodlighting the Craigdarroch board headquarters although several board members suggested outline lighting similar to that on the Legislative Buildings would be more preferable.

Original bell which was housed in a tower at the old Craigflower School, now a historic site, will be returned to the building from the new Craigflower School where a buzzer system is being installed.

Trustee R. H. Reeve gave notice he will ask the board to prohibit individual student pictures except for graduates in Grade 12. All other grades should be permitted only class pictures.

Trustee George Curran said he hoped the board would receive expressions of opinion on the practice of assigning most school construction projects to the same architectural firm.

Trustee Reeve, chairman of buildings and grounds committee, said the board was using a significant cross-section of the local architects.

He said there is "no favored group or firm but I think it's understandable and good business that you concentrate your work on those who give you the best professional service in the broadest sense."

Second City Man Now 'Life Master' In Bridge World

The fifth sectional tournament of the Victoria unit, American Contract Bridge League, will be held at the Empress Hotel, Friday through Sunday.

Play starts Friday at 1:30 p.m.

The Madeline Anderson Trophy will be awarded the unit member gaining the most master points in the tournament.

Meanwhile, the ACBL has announced that Tony Marsh, 254 Newport, has achieved the rank of "life master" in the league. He obtained the final points needed in a recent tournament in Portland, Ore.

He is the second Victoria player to reach the life master level. The first was Otto Leemant, 1803 Fernwood.

SEA WAS NEVER LIKE THIS

Scaling a mountain peak presents considerably different problems than climbing to the truck of a mast, but Canadian sailors now on a training cruise "down under" quickly picked up mountain climbing skills from expert New Zealand guides. Climbers, all novices, were from frigate Sussexvale, Beacon Hill and New Glasgow, scaled peaks in Mt. Cook National Park and earned praise from their guides. 'Most Beloved' Dog Victim of Poisoning

Oak Bay police and SPCA officials are investigating the area's first report of dog poisoning this year—11-year-old Lassie, "most beloved member" of the E. L. Young family, 2819 Somass.

The dog, a favorite with children, was found dying in a next door garden Monday. She had apparently been trying to reach home.

Loss of their pet has left the family heartbroken. Mrs. Young said today, Lassie was devoted to the children, four-year-old Evan and two-year-old Brenda.

"In fact she loved all children," said Mrs. Young. "She had a natural instinct to look after them."

Mrs. Young was at a loss to understand the poisoning.

FOUND STARVING

"She was a favorite with neighbors and was not a barker like some dogs around here, although she sometimes wandered into gardens. When we came to Victoria less than a year ago we were told people here liked dogs."

She said Lassie became the family pet in 1952 when she was found starving on the highway near Nelson.

"She had been abandoned for being female so we took her in," Mrs. Young said.

During her life, Lassie survived two major operations. Last year in Prince George she had her entire nose crushed by a heavy oil truck.

SLIRIOUS OFFENCE

The dog had seen one of the Young's children standing on the other side of the street down which the truck was travelling. She apparently dashed across the street to keep the child from wandering into the road but was struck by the truck herself.

"It was touch and go," said Mrs. Young, "but Lassie pulled through—complete with a new nose."

"She survived all that only to die of poisoning."

An autopsy by a veterinarian confirmed death was due to poisoning, but the type of poison used has yet to be determined.

'Give Savings To Matson Sunset Lodge'

Salvation Army spokesmen today called for closing of the city's Mountain View Home and using some of the operating savings to give $50,000 towards construction of the Matson Memorial Sunset Lodge.

The proposal was outlined by an Army delegation to City Hall. It will be followed by a formal submission to council April 13.

Salvation Army board chairman William McIntyre said the delegation told Mayor Percy Scurrah the city spends $17,500 annually on operating costs for Mountain View Home and will have to spend an extra $12,000 this year for new equipment.

FUND DRIVE

Meanwhile the Army is organizing a campaign to build a large, modern home for the aged on the old Matson Estate which could easily absorb the 28 aged men living at the city home.

"When our development is ready—probably about mid-1962—we could take the old men in the civic home, thus relieving the city of annual costs of about $17,500 and the extra $12,000 needed now," Mr. McIntyre said.

"In addition, this would free the property for other civic use or sale."

"In return, we are proposing that the city give us a substantial grant to help construct the Matson Sunset Lodge."

City Outlet Plan Depends On Saanich

Capital Improvement District Commission is prepared to spend $180,000 to beautify the entrance to Greater Victoria if Saanich will co-operate with the city in passing a "no parking bylaw" between the Fountain Circle and Saanich Road.

CIDC informed the Saanich council Monday that it has approved the beautification scheme which originated from city engineer J. C. Garnett.

City representatives on the district commission are strongly in favor of the project.

The beautification program calls for the widening of Douglas and the installation of a tree-lined boulevard.

Saanich councillors decided to table the matter for further discussion after Couns. Leslie Passmore and Joseph Casey indicated they were "cool" to the project.

"At first I was inclined to favor the scheme," said Coun. Passmore, "but after an on-the-spot inspection I now think I can't support it."

HAT FOUND

Drowning Search Continues

Logging hat worn by crane operator Harvey Wingen when he was knocked into the water in a freak accident Sunday was recovered by skin divers near Tofino Monday, but no sign of the body has been found.

Search is continuing, with the Tofino lifeboat and RCMP patrol boat engaged, assisted by skin divers.

The accident occurred aboard the self-loading, self-unloading log barge Forest Prince, built last year at Yarrows Ltd.

Only meagre details are available. Wingen was operating one of two large cranes which are mounted on 30-foot pedestals on the barge to lift logs out of the water and saw them on the barge.

For reasons not yet known, the crane broke away from its base and plunged into 60 feet of water, carrying the operator with it.

Owner of the barge is B.C. Forest Products Ltd., whose president, C. D. Dickey Jr., said today: "We are overcome by the tragedy of this accident. Insufficient details are available at this time to determine the cause. The barge had only recently passed a complete inspection by the builder and the crane manufacturer."

YOUTH, 16, SENTENCED TO YEAR ON BIRTHDAY

Ronald Bennett, 614 Seaforth, marked his 16th birthday today by appearing in city police court.

He was given a minimum sentence of one year in jail on each of two charges of car theft—concurrent.

Bennett, transferred from juvenile court, pleaded guilty to both charges before Magistrate William Ostler.

Mr. Ostler sent the boy to Oakalla jail young offenders' unit for one year definite and three months indeterminate.

Noting that it was Bennett's birthday and referring to a probation report, the magistrate told him:

"For a boy of your age you have what could only be described as a shocking record. Although it is your first appearance in adult court, you seem to have run the gamut of offences ..."

Milky Way Wins Packaging Fight

No change in present fluid milk packaging regulations will be recommended by the legislature's select standing committee on agriculture.

The committee was asked whether legislation should be brought in to restrict fluid milk packages to standard Canadian measures—half-pint, pint, quart and multiple quart measures.

Stan Carnell (S.C.—Peace River South), chairman of the committee, which heard representations from dairy interests across the province, said the committee, in a closed meeting today, resolved to leave milk packaging regulations unchanged.

He said the committee split on the question but a majority of its 13 members voted in favor of no change.

The committee study resulted from a dispute that has continued for more than a year over use by Milky Way Dairy in suburban Saanich of United States standard measure cartons containing 64 ounces. A Canadian two-quart carton contains 80 ounces.

Questions were raised on whether the consumer should be protected against any possibility that they might buy the 64-ounce carton believing they were getting the larger Canadian standard quart. Committee members also wondered whether restrictions to Canadian standards might interfere with the free enterprise shown by farmers who established Milky Way Dairy.

Milky Way's right to use the 64-ounce cartons under present regulations was upheld by the courts when challenged by the agriculture department earlier.

The matter is expected to be dropped by the legislature following the agriculture committee report.

TREKKERS GIVEN ROUSING SENDOFF

They Hit the Air Monday ... The Road Wednesday

Victoria's two "bird-walkers" were given a rousing send-off Monday night as they left on the first leg of their intended 4,000-mile walk across the country.

Fellow Jaycees and friends of Don Johnson and Blaine Tringham formed a motorcade from the city out to Patricia Bay airport and then staged a noisy farewell for the boys in the airport hall.

The two were expected to reach Halifax this morning and plan to start out on their marathon hike-home Wednesday, carrying "Follow the birds to Victoria," slogans all the way.

Going to Halifax with the walkers were 30 dozen daffodils for presentation to the Halifax Junior Chamber of Commerce from the "daffodil capital" and a papier mache seagull. The boys hope to present the latter to the Jaycees' national president in Halifax.

MONTE ROBERTS

Please do not tell the Cats' Protection League or even the SPCA, but I am harboring what must be the world's most frustrated feline.

The name of the cat is Little Miss Muffet, and the fault in the matter is mine, all mine.

Miss Muffet has been our resident cat for something over four years now, during which time she has smoothly and efficiently taken over the task of making sure that everything in the house is done for her benefit, pleasure, or comfort.

In return, Miss Muffet gives out with a measurable amount of affection, comes when called if it suits her to come when called, and beats up on My Favorite Wife's nylons.

Thus, as anyone owned by a cat can see, we had a perfectly adjusted feline in our house, and all was sweetness, light, and as normal as normal can be.

Then came the bird feeding station!

We were presented with a bird feeding station (a small chunk of log into which are inserted delectable bits of suet and birdseed), and the kindly gentleman who installed same did so on a bracket just outside the window of the breakfast nook.

This placed the feeding station less than a foot from the window, and I told the kindly gentleman, thanks very much, but the birds will never approach this close to people. Especially people who harbor a cat.

And for awhile, my prediction was right. Each time a free-loading bird appeared to do a little free-loading, Muffet would rear up on her hind legs and make like a cougar (not the hockey kind.)

And the bird would go away, talking to itself.

Then, one day, a bird who was wise to the ways of city dwellers (I suspect he was a Double Breasted London-derry Air, with swallowtail and hand-sewn seams) figured out he was separated from his natural enemy, the cat, by a pane of glass.

With a glad cry, the bird fell upon the goodies, while the cat swished the tip of her tail and announced to one and all what she'd do to the interloper if only he'd come in and fight.

Well, you know how birds talk.

It wasn't long before word got around the neighborhood: drop in for dinner at Chez Roberts. The food is good, and the floor show features the most comical cat you've ever seen.

If I could figure out some way of collecting a cover charge, I'd soon be independently wealthy.

Meanwhile, Little Miss Muffet has figured out it is all my fault (which it is) and is barely speaking to me.

So please don't tell the Cats' Protection League, or even the SPCA, that I am harboring a frustrated feline.

Give me time to find a cat-in-trist—although I'm afraid even this wouldn't help.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. These days we hear so much about nations of the Commonwealth, both leaving and joining. Would you please give a modern-day definition to the term Commonwealth? C.H.S.

A. The term is used in referring to a state, country, or to a group of states and countries, as in the British Commonwealth. Original meaning was a group of persons banded together for the common good, or "commonwealth." Australia, a member of the British Commonwealth, is a commonwealth in itself, as, for instance further, is Pennsylvania in the U.S. In essence, it is merely a term sometimes used, sometimes not. Today it is applied mostly in connection with countries which while independent hold filial allegiance to England.

Answers wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Scurrah's Ltd., ladies' wear, 728 Yates, entered a plea of not guilty on a two-count charge in city police court Monday to removing and destroying labels from Japanese goods.

Charge is laid under the Excise Tax Act, forbidding removal of labels designating origin of goods, in this case, sweaters.

The store was remanded to April 24 to fix a date for trial.

Free preview of films will be shown Wednesday at 3 p.m. in the music room of Victoria Public Library.

Saanich will ask school principals to do a little lecturing on the practice of being tidy.

Police chief Bert Pearson said today he is receiving many complaints that pupils on their way to and from schools are littering streets and sidewalks with paper and trash.

Mount Douglas High School was singled out as one of the big offenders.

He said the municipal clerk plans to take the matter up with school principals.

Monthly meeting of the Saanich Liberal Association will be held at Liberal headquarters, 1322A Government Street, tonight at 8. Films will be shown and a discussion on party structure will be conducted by the provincial organizer, Ron Fairclough.

A St. Patrick's tea will be featured at the next meeting of Esquimalt Golden Age Club, the community hall, 8000 Esquimalt Road, 8 p.m. Wednesday. There will also be a miscellaneous stall.

Finals in the Golden Gavel public speaking contest will be held Monday, March 27, at 8 p.m. in the city hall council chambers.

There will be eight contestants, two winners from each of four previous contests. Winner of Monday's contest was Frank Stafford, 101 Island Highway, who spoke on the "Decline and Fall." Duncan Stevenson, 364 Goldstream, placed second.

DEAR ABBY

Sound a Retreat!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We have some friends (a married couple, our age) who invite us over for an evening and, as soon as we arrive, they will get out the Bible and start a fight. If it weren't for their forever trying to get us to change our religion to theirs, they would be the grandest people alive.

It so happens we are satisfied with our religion, and have no desire to change it. We enjoy a lively discussion of the various religious faiths, but they tell us our religion is full of contradictions and is based on myths, fables and superstitions. My husband says to ignore it, but I think our friendship should terminate. What do you think?

NOT READY FOR A CHANGE

DEAR NOT READY: Leave this couple alone for a "cooling off" period. If they sincerely miss your company they will ask, "What's the matter?" Then give it to them with both Testaments.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's cousin is being married. He asked my husband to be best man. He also asked our six-year-old daughter to be the flower girl. My husband said only those in the wedding party were invited to the dinner. That leaves me and the other five children out. When I asked him where we were supposed to eat, he said we should stay home. He is 26 and I am 25 and I think I have done my share of staying home since my marriage. My children are 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and six. What is the solution?

LEFT OUT: Your children aged 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 do not belong at a wedding dinner, so get a sitter and go with your husband. As the wife of the best man, and mother of the flower girl, I am sure you will be welcome.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FED-UP WIFE": If you are wise, you will encourage him to tell you his troubles. I know a man whose wife wouldn't listen to him, and 30 years later he had to pay someone $50 an hour to listen to his confessions.

"What's your problem?" For a personal reply from Abby, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Who pays for what? For Abby's pamphlet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $50 to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

If Morale Needs a Boost, Go Out and Buy a Hat

Most women know that a morale booster is a big help when we are worried or frustrated or disappointed about something.

We also know that, superficial as it may seem, a new hat or a new hairdo or new costume, often turns the trick by making us feel attractive and successful again. They also divert us from the problem. Beautiful screen star Joan Fontaine says, "If something happens that threatens to upset me, I've found a wonderful way to calm down. I just forget it for a while and go out and buy a new hat."

Miss Fontaine is a classic beauty who is noted for her cool elegance in dress. She believes in a "serene" wardrobe as a part of achieving inner assurance. She says, "Fussing with a bow that won't lie flat or an intricately draped skirt detracts from poise."

The basis of Joan Fontaine's wardrobe is the tailored or simple-lined suit or dress which is elegant of fabric and color and innocent of fussy details. However, serenity does not mean monotony in Miss Fontaine's book. She achieves drama in two ways. She usually wears one important, chic piece of jewelry instead of a nervous scattering of bracelets, necklaces and earrings, and she has a large wardrobe of hats.

As a matter of fact, she was a winner of the Golden Hat Award for 1960 as one of the best-hatted women in the country. Her favorite type hat is the high-crowned turban. This style is well suited to her uncluttered look and high-boned beauty and is still eye-catching and accents her outfits.

The thread of serenity seems to play an important part in the life and charm of this lovely woman. From her New York apartment, down in soft, restful greens and thick carpeting, to her well-planned and organized days, Miss Fontaine takes care to eliminate hecticness and confusion from her life.

She also has a sincere belief that a woman's appearance has a real effect on her happiness. She said, "They say that beauty is skin deep, but I believe that outward appearance is an important factor in producing inner content. I hardly think there is a woman who isn't happier when she knows she is looking her best. In my case, I have found that a deliberate serenity of appearance and manner help keep me mentally calm and untroubled."

Spring Flowers Set Theme At YM-YWCA Coffee Party

Fragrance of freshly cut hyacinths greeted guests who entered the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria for a coffee party and sale of home cooking sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the YM-YWCA on Monday.

More than 250 persons attended and $550 was realized. Half of the funds will go toward new building project of the YM-YWCA and the rest toward upkeep of present YMCA building.

In the Massey Gallery huge arrangements of daffodils, golden forsythia and greenery studied the room. In the Sara Spencer Gallery a flourishing home-bake sale was in progress. Walls were hung with the colorful oils of the B.C. landscape by local artist Lillian C. Sweeney. Some of her intricate bird carvings in wood were also on show.

Centre of the party was the Mark Kearley Gallery, where coffee and refreshments were enjoyed.

Centring the white clothed serving table was an arrangement of daffodils, jonquils and narcissi flanked by glowing candles in silver candelabra.

Pouring tea and coffee were Miss Sara Spencer, Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah, Mrs. A. H. Sheard, Mrs. R. Stark and Miss Kathleen Agnew. General conveners were Mrs. Alan B. Macfarlane and Mrs. Ross Curtis while home-cooking conveners were Mrs. Ross McNeely and Mrs. G. B. Buffam. Mrs. Matthew Heddy arranged the floral decorations.

Thankoffering — Miss B. Armstrong, RN, gave an interesting account of work done by the World Radio Missionary Fellowship in Ecuador, at Easter thankoffering meeting of Oak Bay United Women's Missionary Society. Devotions were taken by Mrs. T. B. McMillan assisted by Mrs. A. Calder and Mrs. E. G. Emery. Mrs. Willard Ireland was soloist.

Laundry, standard bearer; Mrs. B. Shaw, services at home and abroad, and Mrs. L. Muirhead, assistant services at home and abroad.

Education secretary's report, given by Miss MacNab, showed a total spent on this work during the year as $4,453.06.

A sum of $500 on a $1,000 pledge to the Victoria University fund was made; $1,963.50 given in bursaries and scholarships and $865 for special educational work. A further sum of $1,075 was used in work with students.

Report of services at home and abroad secretary, Mrs. B. T. Shaw, showed a total of $3,465.61 spent during the year by the various chapters with a sum of $2,410.36, given to local welfare work.

Reports of standing committees and primary chapters were given during the afternoon session. Special guests included Mrs. A. O. DuVernet and Mrs. H. H. Shortreed, president and first vice-president of Provincial Chapter, and Mrs. A. B. Hall, Nanaimo, provincial organizing secretary. Retiring regent, Mrs. Owen Fowler, presided.

ARE FACE CREAMS OVER-RATED?

Sometimes no, sometimes yes! A cream with fancy price, fancy package, plus extravagant promises of a "miracle," is obviously over-rating itself. There are no easy "miracles" in skin care — but you can get results with regular use of a cream that offers consistent quality and honest, pure ingredients. POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM, for instance. This famous cream, now with Allantoin, is made specifically to repair dry, aging skin. Allantoin (long known to doctors as a tissue-builder) floats off lifeless surface skin cells, speeds penetration of POND's rich moisturized lanolin into thirsty tissues. Used regularly, POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM keeps skin smooth, soft, young-looking. Get POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM today. Reasonably priced, buy it in jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold. Advt.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

TEL AVIV — A Jewish cowboy singer at the Omar Khayyam Cafe here told us American customers that the American cowboys sing very softly, but that Jewish cowboys sing loudly and sweetly.

"We hope that our loud and sweet songs will cause the cows in Jordan to cross the border into Israel," he jokingly explained, "because while we have plenty of cowboys in Israel we don't have plenty of cows."

Actually, the steak situation in Israel is much improved, along with every thing else in this land. One reason for the better steak is that a Texan and a Montanan started "Operation Cowboy" near the Sea of Galilee, and there conducted a cowboy school to train the future John Waynes and Hugh O'Brians.

One day a Braham steer leaped into the Sea of Galilee and the cowboys lassoed it. It was reliably reported to be the first steer ever lassoed in the Sea of Galilee. Israel, anyway, is thankful to Texas for helping its supply of cowboys and cows.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 26-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question, a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 26-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Paul Stockholm, age 11, of Cumberland, Me., for his question:

Will there ever be another Ice Age?

The earliest known Ice Age left its claw marks on the face of the earth more than 500 million years ago. Its footprints are older than the oldest fossil. Its mighty glaciers came and went when the ancient Killarney Mountains lifted their lofty peaks in what is now Wisconsin, Minnesota and central Canada. These old mountains have long since worn down to gentle rounded hills.

Around 200 million years ago, equatorial regions of India, Africa and Australia were in the frozen grip of a cruel Ice Age. The wide waist of the world was girdled with glaciers. Elsewhere, giant salamanders were leaving muddy footprints on the shores, and the small ancestors of the dinosaurs were beginning to grow bigger. Palms and pines were rooted firmly on the land. California was swamped by shallow seas and the southern arm of the massive Appalachians was lifting up to the clouds.

The Pleistocene epoch of the past million years may be called the glacial ages, for during this period the massive ice sheets came and went four times. They came from the north, covering much of North America, Asia and Europe. The last ice sheets began to withdraw some 40,000 years ago and Sweden was freed from their cruel grip only about 13,000 years ago.

Ice Ages have occurred at various times throughout earth's long history, though not at regular intervals. At present, the world is enjoying an age-long springtime after an age-long winter of glaciers. This may be one of those long mild spells of world climate which occurred between each of the glacial invasions of the past million years. Or it may be that the recent series of cruel Ice Ages is over, in which case the outlook for the world climate for the next 100 million years or so is warm and mild.

Slight Drop in Temperature

In order that Ice Age glaciers may form, the world climate need only fall six to eight degrees. The summers would then be too cool to melt the winter snowfall. This has, we know, happened several times in the past. Volcanic dust and carbon dioxide could cool the world.

The cool spells which cause an Ice Age may also be caused by the sun. The sunspot cycles tell us that the heat poured out by Old Sol varies. There may have been long periods of short sunshine rations. Changes in circulation in the atmosphere may also cause long cool spells. Maybe a combination of these and other factors is necessary to cause an Ice Age.

In any case, Ice Ages seem to be part of earth's history and hence we can expect that whatever caused them will occur again. Since we are not sure what these factors are, we cannot predict the next one. In the past they have been few and far between. Let's hope that the old earth can look forward to a balmy summer of, say, 200 million years.

Andy sends a Hammond's Nature Atlas of America to Gail Meadows, age eight, of Asheville, N.C., for her question:

What makes popcorn pop?

The little kernels are jam-packed with rich starchy corn food. There also may be moisture hidden inside the hard little bullets. The heat may turn the moisture to steam, which swells and swells, mixing with the starch to form light frothy foam. Suddenly the exploding mixture bursts the hard little kernel coat with a pop. Popcorn is grown from a special kind of corn. It is a cousin to ordinary corn, but the plant is smaller, the ears are smaller and the seeds are smaller—until we pop them in the popcorn heater.

As you can see, the trip the B.W. and I have made here has been prime educational.

Paula Ben-Gurion, the former Brooklyn and Newark nurse who became the prime minister's wife, is the subject of many pleasant anecdotes.

Once, so the story goes, she went to the front door of their home and told the Army guard stationed there he must go and buy her some bread. She was still in pajamas.

The guard objected that he couldn't leave his post.

"I'll guard the house," she retorted and, taking his rifle from him, she guarded her own house till he brought back the bread.

You're a little surprised standing at a cocktail party here, talking to a beautiful actress like Haya Harareet, for example, when you remember she's an ex-soldier and can handle firearms.

The pretty khaki-clad soldierettes are seen marching on the highways, or they might even, during the leisure, be standing near you at a food counter. They go into service at 18 and serve till 20, and it'll continue that way, I'm told, because it's part of the educational system as much as defence.

Believe it or not, there's a Samson's Inn in the Samson and Delilah country on the road to Jerusalem, and there my beautiful wife suggested that a good name for a barber shop would be The Delilah.

EARL'S FEARS: What some people don't know about driving would fill a repair shop.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A fellow mentioned that his wife's been missing for four days: "I don't know whether she's left me, or gone shopping."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A tax expert, claims Sam Pascal, is just a fellow who keeps you out of jail by putting you in the poor house.

Larry Mathews began to suspect his pal was a secret drinker when the guy insisted he saw nothing unusual about the Tower of Pisa... That's earl, brother.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Tegid Jones will show films of Wales at the monthly meeting of Victoria Cymrodorion Society in Dulcie's Hall, 512 Fort Street, tonight at 8.

Saturday was a "highly satisfying" day for the free food stall with enough food to supply the 250 hungry families which asked help, according to the convener, Mrs. E. E. Harper.

There was an abundance of donated vegetables, venison, lamb, fish, and everything. Everyone got a very good hamper.

Wolfgang A. Winter, a cartographic expert in the B.C. government's geographic division, has left for the Republic of Somalia to assist in establishing Somalia's first national cartographic office.

He will help organize a mapping unit, direct the preparation of base maps, general and topographic maps and train technical staff.

Mr. Winter is one of a team of experts to be sent to Somalia under the United Nations program of technical assistance. He came to Canada from Berlin three years ago.

Shady Political Deal Marked Hitler's Rise

(Adapted from "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," published by Simon and Schuster, and copyrighted by William L. Shirer, 1960.)

(Third in a Series)

Hitler's first great opportunity came in the fall of 1930, when parliamentary government in Germany began breaking down.

The moderate Chancellor, Heinrich Brüning, had submitted the emergency economic measures to the Reichstag to keep the Republic from falling apart. The Nazis, the other extreme rightists and the Communists joined in voting down these requested measures. Brüning was forced to rule by decree. Although this was permitted by constitution in an emergency, it suspended parliamentary democracy.

When Chancellor Brüning appealed for a stable democratic majority in a Reichstag election, called for Sept. 14, 1930, Hitler stumped the country with an appeal of his own.

A Nazi government, he promised, would refuse to pay reparations and would repudiate the "shameful" Versailles Treaty. The Nazis would bring the "money barons" to heel (especially if they were Jews) and would see to it that every German had a job.

THE BLACK HEART OF HITLER

BY WILLIAM L. SHIRER

The Nazis had polled only 810,000 votes two years before, but now they received 6½ million. This entitled them to 107 seats in the Reichstag, against the 12 they had previously held. Only the Social Democrats outpolled the Nazis — and they had lost a million votes.

Neat Trickery

This emboldened the brash Nazi leader. Less than two years later, in the spring of 1932, he decided to run for president against the 84-year-old Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg.

Actually, Hitler was not legally eligible to become president of Germany. He was not a German citizen. He had renounced his Austrian citizenship in 1925, but had not been able to obtain German citizenship. He was a man without a country.

This handicap was easily surmounted by a neat piece of trickery. On Feb. 25, 1932, the ministers of interior of the small state of Brunswick announced that he had appointed "Herr Hitler" as the German representative to the League of Nations in Berlin. The league was a hold-over from the imperial days, when Brunswick had been a duchy. This made the Nazi chief automatically a citizen of Brunswick and hence of Germany.

Hitler's bid for the big prize failed. Although he polled over 11 million votes, Hindenburg led with 18½ million. Because of the votes polled by other candidates, this was a fraction of 1 per cent less than the required absolute majority, so a runoff was held.

This time, Hitler gained a further two million votes — a total of 13½ million. But Hindenburg was elected with 53 per cent of the votes cast. Hitler had received 37 per cent, and 10 per cent went to a Communist candidate.

This was a considerable achievement, but it showed that a majority of the German people still rejected Hitler.

He tried again for that majority in two Reichstag elections later that year. In the first, the Nazis polled nearly 14 million votes and elected 230 deputies to the Reichstag, becoming by far the largest party — but still in a minority. In the second election, held in November, the party's vote declined by two millions, and the Nazis lost 34 seats.

The November setback shattered the legend that the Nazi movement could not be stopped. Its tide had started to ebb. There was much talk in Germany that Hitler could never get a majority vote in a free national election.

But he saw other paths to power. It was obvious, as the year 1932 faded out, that the democratic German Republic was doomed. The only question was which group would grab control of the country. Hitler realized that the old-school reactionaries — chiefly the Junkers aristocracy, big business and the army — had the inside track.

Double-Cross

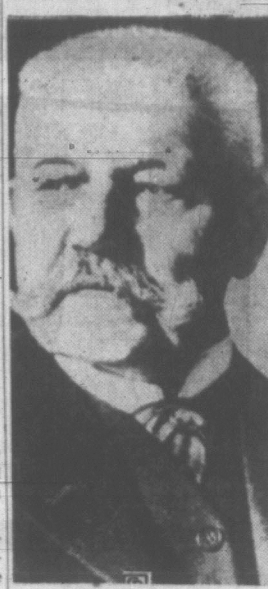

In May, 1932, these groups had persuaded Hindenburg to dismiss Brüning as Chancellor and appoint Franz von Papen. Papen had no support whatever in the Reichstag. After numerous intrigues, he was replaced on December 1 by Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, whose name in German means "intriguer." He lived up to his name.

In secret dealings before Papen was dismissed, Schleicher had held out to Hitler the prospect of Hitler's becoming Chancellor, and then had double-crossed the Nazi leader by taking the office himself.

Now, Schleicher asked Hitler to join him as Vice-Chancellor. When Hitler refused, Schleicher tried to split the Nazis by offering the post to Gregor Strasser, the party's second in command.

Strasser was not interested in office for himself, but he believed that the Führer's policy of "all or nothing" had brought the Nazi movement to a dead end. Campaigning in three national elections within a year had exhausted the party's funds. And the polls had shown that the Nazis could

... victim of plot not attain power through the ballot.

Strasser therefore strongly urged Hitler to become Vice-Chancellor and place two or three Nazis in Schleicher's cabinet.

Crucial Decision

The two top Nazi leaders had a show-down meeting at the Kaiserhof Hotel in Berlin on December 7. It degenerated into a bitter quarrel that threatened to wreck the party.

Hitler fully realized this, as an entry in the diary of Goebbels makes clear:

"For hours, the Führer paces up and down in the hotel room. He is excited. . . . Finally, he stops and says, 'If the party fails to pieces, I'll put an end to it all in three minutes with a pistol shot.'"

The Nazi party did not fall apart, and Hitler did not shoot himself. Strasser might have achieved both these ends and thus radically changed the course of history. But at the crucial moment, he resigned from the party in disgust and went to Italy.

Hitler, always at his best when he detected weakness in an opponent, struck swiftly and hard. He took over the political organization of the party, which Strasser had built up and bossed. He purged some of Strasser's friends and forced others to take a new oath of loyalty to himself.

Pact With Devil

The wily Austrian had once more extricated himself from a situation that might have proved disastrous. Having quickly re-established his absolute authority over the party, he was ready to renew his bid for a position that would eventually make him dictator of Germany. To succeed, he was quite willing to make a pact with the devil. Papen, eager for revenge against General von Schleicher, offered Hitler a ready substitute.

Although Papen and Hitler had been bitter enemies, they shared a common desire to get rid of Schleicher. On January 4, 1933, they met secretly at the home of a friend to work out a deal. They agreed to form a coalition government in which Hitler would be Chancellor and Papen Vice-Chancellor.

The Nazi chief was forced to make concessions. He agreed to include a majority of non-Nazi conservatives in the cabinet. The two plotters next sought to win over Hindenburg, who admired Papen, but distrusted Hitler. They worked through the president's son and aide, Col. Oskar von Hindenburg, who lacked his father's granite character, but who exerted considerable influence over him behind the scenes.

Hindenburg Duped

There was a highly secret meeting with the president's son on the night of Jan. 22, 1933, at the home of a then obscure Nazi named Joachim von Ribbentrop. Hitler insisted on speaking with the younger Hindenburg alone.

The Nazi chief, it was later reported, used both threats and promises to win over the president's son. He threatened to reveal a scandal concerning tax evasion on the Hindenburg estate in East Prussia. Then the Nazi leader promised to reward Oskar handsomely and overlook the tax evasion if Oskar would help persuade his father to name Hitler Chancellor.

From that moment on, the president's state secretary later testified, Hitler had Oskar von Hindenburg "under his spell."

Hitler and Papen also worked on the army and leading businessmen. Hindenburg finally became convinced that they could obtain a majority in the Reichstag. Since Chancellor von Schleicher admitted that he could not, he was dismissed by the president on Jan. 28, 1933.

Two days later, Adolf Hitler reached his goal. By means of a shabby political deal with the old-school conservatives he privately detested — and who despised him — the one-time Vienna tramp and self-styled revolutionary had become Chancellor of Germany.

To be sure, the Nazis were in a decided minority in the new government. They had only three of the 11 cabinet posts. Papen and his conservative friends were confident that they had Hitler in their pockets. They were soon to be disillusioned.

It took Hitler just a year and a half to eliminate all of them, destroy their political parties and wipe out the last vestige of democratic, republican institutions.

In that brief time, he nazified Germany from top to bottom, unifying it for the first time in history by erasing the historic states and establishing himself as dictator.

He ended freedom of speech and of the press, denied the most elemental civil rights, persecuted the Christian churches and hounded the Jews.

He directed the murder of many Germans and had others carted off to concentration camps to be beaten and ultimately slaughtered. He also started to prepare for aggressive war.

The monstrous figure of a bloodthirsty, unscrupulous tyrant, whom the overwhelming majority of the German people nevertheless soon came to revere and worship, quickly emerged.

NEXT: Hitler decides on the infamous blood purge of June, 1934.

Cell Suicide Attempt Fails

COURTENAY—Arthur Eric Edlund, 55, of Cumberland, tried to commit suicide in his cell after his arrest Saturday for criminal negligence in the death of an elderly pedestrian.

Dead is Arthur Charles Scott, 74, a retired sawmill worker, hit by the car when he was carrying groceries home.

Edlund tried to hang himself in his cell shortly after arrest.

He was transferred to hospital and appeared briefly in court Monday. He was remanded without plea to March 28.

A coroner's jury viewed the body of the victim Monday night. Inquest was adjourned to a later date.

CHEMAINUS—A skeleton found in a creek bed on River Road 10 days ago has been tentatively identified as the remains of a seaman missing off a foreign freighter docked here a year ago.

RCMP believe he committed suicide. When found the skeleton wore an old coat, rubber boots and a wrist watch.

ALBERTA—Mayor Mabel Anderson said in council Monday she will call for a public inquiry into city affairs.

Her statement followed a vain fight against two motions dealing with the post office issue.

Last year council asked the postal department to enlarge and renovate Alberti post office despite a warning this would delay start of mail deliveries.

Following the motion residents petitioned for mail delivery and council was told nothing would be done until the matter was clarified.

Mayor Anderson opposed a motion to rescind last year's resolution but was defeated. She also opposed a motion which passed that council favor a plebiscite on the question. No further action was taken.

Chairman of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co., Hon. J. Y. Clyne, has refused to enter into debate with North Vancouver MLA J. Gordon Gibson, who challenged him to debate the tree farm licence question.

"I would not waste my time debating with him," Mr. Clyne said.

PORT ALBERNI—A campaign to raise a minimum of $300,000 to establish a civic centre here has been given the go-ahead.

Plan of the Civic Centre Association is for construction of an ice arena, meeting rooms, gymnasium, swimming pool and tennis courts on a 10.85-acre site held by the city for the project.

Approval was given almost unanimously by 250 persons who attended a public meeting Sunday.

Inspections Offered by U.S. On Ending of Nuclear Tests

Concessions Made to Soviet

GENEVA (Reuters)—The United States today proposed to let Soviet scientists inspect all nuclear devices to be used in American seismic research programs.

The offer was among a number of proposals made by American delegate Arthur Dean as the three-nation talks on a nuclear tests bar resumed here after a 15-week recess.

Dean said both Britain and the United States would accept a Soviet demand that their scientists be allowed to take part in all stages of experimental explosions, including inspection of the devices, how they were exploded and the data obtained from the tests.

He said President Kennedy would ask Congress to authorize such inspection, banned at present under the McMahon Act which forbids all foreigners from examining U.S. nuclear devices.

Dean asked the Russians to grant American scientists similar access to Soviet nuclear devices if Russia decided to explode them in a Soviet research program.

He also asked the Russians to reconsider their decision not to take part in joint seismic research programs with the West.

Dean said the West is prepared to agree to a moratorium of three years on small underground explosions. The West had previously proposed a two-year moratorium with an additional period of three months' appraisal.

The Russians have proposed a moratorium of four to five years.

The American delegate said West is prepared to grant the Soviet Union a total of 20 annual inspections of suspicious seismic events on United States soil and an additional 20 on British territories.

The West previously had suggested 20 inspections on Soviet territory and 20 to be divided between the two Western powers.

The Russians last year would agree to no more than three inspections on Soviet territory.

Dean also conceded the So-

'ANY CONTROL' ACCEPTABLE SAYS MR. K

LONDON (Reuters)—Nikita Khrushchev today said the Soviet Union will agree to "any" control over its sweeping three-stage disarmament plan.

In a three-hour speech from the Asian republic of Kazakhstan broadcast throughout Russia by Moscow radio, the Soviet premier said:

"We are not threatening anyone. On the contrary, we do not want war."

He said Russia will "accept any conditions of control on disarmament if our proposals on disarmament are accepted."

Khrushchev last September proposed a three-stage disarmament plan before the United Nations General Assembly in New York including elimination of nuclear weapons; prohibition of all means of mass destruction, and completion of the abolition of armed forces.

The West countered with a more gradual plan.

New Threat By Leftists

VIETNAME (Reuters)—The right-wing regime of civil war-torn Laos was faced by a serious new military threat today as leftist forces battled to within 40 miles of the Mekong River border with Thailand.

A strong drive by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces from the east today reached the outskirts of the town of Kam Keut and heavy fighting with rightist troops was reported.

UN Failure Soviet Aim Says Adlai

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union today demanded the removal of United Nations' secretary-general Dag Hammarskjöld "as an accomplice and organizer" of the slaying of deposed Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba.

In a sharp attack before the UN General Assembly, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko also called for the termination of the UN operation in the Congo within one month and a thorough structural overhauling of the world organization.

He warned that the United Nations may suffer the same fate as the League of Nations if it continues in its present course.

Due to the Congo crisis, he said, the world faced a situation similar to that on the eve of the Second World War.

CRITICIZES RUSS

U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson accused the Soviet Union of obstructing UN efforts in the Congo and of injecting into the debate "the most destructive spirit of the cold war."

"The Soviet Union does not want the United Nations to succeed in the Congo," Stevenson said.

Gromyko's demand for Hammarskjöld's dismissal was one of five major points he advanced as the 99-nation assembly began its new round of Congo debate.

The others included penalties against Belgium if it failed to withdraw all Belgian civilian and military personnel from the Congo immediately.

UN Civilians Get Go-Ahead

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—Premier Joseph Ileo offered today to let "several" UN civilians—but no troops—return to disputed Matadi to supervise the handling of supplies backlogged there.

Ileo's statement at a press conference did not indicate whether his government would allow the landing of new supplies in the strategic port.

'DON'T LET US HAVE HUMBUG'

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia said Monday night it is "monstrous" for member countries of the Commonwealth to sit in judgment upon one another.

"I am not Dr. Verwoerd," Menzies said. "I am not an apostle of apartheid—also I have my own immigration policy—but I am bound to say that I would not have left the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference later than Dr. Verwoerd left it."

"Don't let us have humbug. I would not tolerate being lectured by other people. There will not be any Commonwealth if it becomes a court with people on trial, because we shall all expel each other."

Menzies paid high tribute to Verwoerd's bearing, integrity and courtesy during the prime minister's conference.

OWNED SPY EQUIPMENT

Mystery Man Takes Blame

LONDON (AP)—Gordon A. Lonsdale, mystery man of the British naval secrets trial, dramatically acknowledged in court today that spy equipment found in a suburban bungalow belonged to him.

The key figure of the spy trial, variously represented as an American, a Russian and a Canadian, took full blame for a radio transmitter which could be beamed to Moscow, a cigarette lighter with secret compartments, photographic equipment with microdots used in espionage and some fake passports.

The house where Scotland Yard found the assorted paraphernalia was owned by Peter Kroger, 50, and his wife, Helen, 47.

Lonsdale said they were innocent of any connection with the suspect items. He claimed that $2,600 in American money found in the house also belonged to him.

Lonsdale made his voluntary statement in Old Bailey courtroom without being sworn, a procedure that prevented his being cross-examined.

Lonsdale spoke for seven minutes as soon as court convened. He made no mention of the remaining two defendants, Henry F. Houghton, 55-year-old British naval clerk, and Houghton's girl friend, Ethel E. Gee, 46, a fellow employee.

Houghton and Miss Gee admitted they gave Lonsdale papers relating to Britain's undersea warfare and films of drawings of the top secret atomic submarine. Dread nought.

INNOCENCE CLAIMED
As soon as Lonsdale accepted full responsibility for the items found in the Kroger home, the Krogers made statements in a similar manner—not under oath—that they were innocent.

Lonsdale said he was "anxious that Mr. and Mrs. Kroger should not suffer from what I have done in putting my property in their home."

"I have known the Krogers since 1955," Lonsdale told the jury of 12 men, who have sat since March 13.

OFTEN VISITED HOUSE
"During the last two or three years I often visited them and sometimes spent weekends in their home. Whenever they went away from Ruislip, Peter Kroger would leave the keys with me and ask me to stay at his house where he had antiquarian books worth several thousand pounds."

"He knew I lived in a very small service flat. I used this flat as an excuse to keep at the Krogers some of my property, for example, my Praktina camera, various photographic equipment and some other articles."

"At one time while the Krogers were away I constructed the hiding place found in the foundation of the house and deposited there for long-term storage the radio transmitter and other articles."

HE TILLS FOR NEEDY TOTS

Sailor Keeps His Word

Leading Seaman Robert Heans, 29, 720 Miller, has come through nobly.

When the Times last December was conducting a fund-raising campaign on behalf of the Unitarian Service Committee for the starving children of India, the Naden sailor wanted to help.

But he was broke.

So he offered to roto-till a garden for somebody if that person would contribute to the fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Connor, 1160 North Park, took him up on the offer.

On Monday LS Heans roto-tilled a 75 by 50 foot patch of land near their house.

When he finished, the Connors brought a $10 cheque to the Times, which will purchase food for the waifs of the sub-continent.

WHICH BOOK?

Comic Red Skelton today is turning his house upside down looking for an Irish sweepstake ticket. He thinks he put ticket in a book but can't remember which book.

2 Islanders Draw Horses

At least two persons from this area have drawn horses in the Irish Sweepstakes on the Grand National steeplechase. The draw was taking place in Dublin today.

THE BIG LIFT

Combination of helicopter and light-weight aluminum power transmission towers is drawing wide interest among electric utility construction men at the annual western division meeting of the Canadian Electrical Association in the Empress Hotel this week. Photo shows a Sikorsky helicopter carrying a complete 4,900-pound tower which can be dropped on a prepared foundation and bolted in place in minutes. The technique was detailed to delegates in paper delivered by F. W. Snell of Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. and was described as a construction method particularly well-suited to the rugged mountain terrain encountered in B.C.

STUDENTS DISAPPOINTED

Irked Premier Stops Debate

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Premier Bennett abruptly adjourned the legislature at 9 p.m. Monday after a night session had been in progress less than an hour.

The premier stated after the House rose that he moved adjournment because night sessions were intended to get work done, not to waste time.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan retaliated immediately by saying:

"The premier adjourned the House because he did not want the government's welfare estimates discussed while the public galleries were filled with welfare workers."

As the House adjourned, a sigh of disappointment was heard from the public galleries, where 50 students from the University of B.C. School of Social Work had gathered.

They said they had come over especially to hear discussion on estimates for the welfare department administered by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black.

These estimates were to have followed adoption of estimates for the recreation and conservation department.

The premier moved adjournment after taking back the much-debated salary vote of Recreation Minister Earle Westwood.

He did this, angrily and abruptly, after Leo Nimsick (CCF-Cranbrook) had stated that either members of the House lacked the courage to

Alberta Oil Demands Take Jump

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

A hefty increase in Canada and U.S. refinery nominations for Alberta crude, condensate and natural gasoline for April has been recorded by the Alberta Conservation Board.

The boost over March nominations is in the order of 15 per cent, and almost equally divided between the domestic and export markets. The U.S. principally the Pacific Northwest will take an additional 27,000 barrels daily average increase during the month of April.

Total nomination is for 482,478 barrels daily, 31.4 per cent higher than last April, with Canadian refiners taking 309,363 barrels and U.S. refiners taking 173,115.

Looking ahead to May, the Conservation Board expects a further increase of 2.5 per cent and then a decline in June of about 3.2 per cent from the April figure.

The heavy deliveries to the Pacific Northwest for March, April and May should boost Trans-Mountain income by a good margin.

Total April nominations for Saskatchewan crude are also up but wholly due to domestic demand; the U.S. market demand has contracted by about 2 per cent.

At 150,950 barrels daily, Saskatchewan nominations are up by 4.1 per cent over March.

Howard Smith Paper Mills Ltd. reports drop in consolidated net profit from $6,109,190 in 1959, to $5,583,286 in 1960. Net sales were up by 4 per cent but were more than offset by increased costs, according to president W. N. Hall.

J. R. Timmins and Co. survey shows dividend payments by Canadian companies for March up more than $2 million over March last year and by $6 million over same month in 1959.

SCHOOL BOARD BRIEFS

City Pupils' Teeth 'Best in B.C.'

Greater Victoria school children have the best dental health in British Columbia, District 61 School Board was told Monday night.

This was indicated by a recently-released report of a B.C. dental health survey carried out in almost all school districts of the province.

Greater Victoria children had significantly fewer dental defects and dental caries, the report said. Most satisfactory ratio of population to dentists—1,786 to one—also was found here.

Board members voted to have a study made to find a suitable site for a new administration centre in line with a long-range plan to move from Craigdarroch Castle.

Non-resident student tuition fees will be boosted from $185 to $200 this fall, to meet increasing per-pupil costs.

Trustees agreed to permit The Castle Society to obtain estimates for floodlighting the Craigdarroch board headquarters although several board members suggested outline lighting similar to that on the Legislative Buildings would be more preferable.

Original bell which was housed in a tower at the old Craigflower School, now a historic site, will be returned to the building from the new Craigflower School where a buzzer system is being installed.

Trustee R. H. Reeve gave notice he will ask the board to prohibit individual student pictures except for graduates in Grade 12. All other grades should be permitted only class pictures.

Trustee George Curran said he hoped the board would receive expressions of opinion on the practice of assigning most school construction projects to the same architectural firm.

Trustee Reeve, chairman of buildings and grounds committee, said the board was using a significant cross-section of the local architects. He said there is "no favored group or firm but I think it's understandable and good business that you concentrate your work on those who give you the best professional service in the broadest sense."

Second City Man Now 'Life Master' In Bridge World

The fifth sectional tournament of the Victoria unit, American Contract Bridge League, will be held at the Empress Hotel, Friday through Sunday.

Play starts Friday at 1:30 p.m.

The Madeline Anderson Trophy will be awarded the unit member gaining the most master points in the tournament.

Meanwhile, the ACBL has announced that Tony Marsh, 954 Newport, has achieved the rank of "life master" in the league. He obtained the final points needed in a recent tournament in Portland, Ore.

He is the second Victoria player to reach the life master level. The first was Otto Leemant, 1803 Fernwood.

SEA WAS NEVER LIKE THIS

Scaling a mountain peak presents considerably different problems than climbing to the truck of a mast, but Canadian sailors now on a training cruise "down under" quickly picked up mountain climbing skills from expert New Zealand guides. Climbers, all novices, were from frigate Sussexvale, Beacon Hill and New Glasgow, scaled peaks in Mt. Cook National Park and earned praise from their guides. Shown taking a breather on a rocky ledge is CPO J. A. Maxwell, 4412 Torquay, whose ship is New Glasgow. In background is Mt. Cook Glacier. (RCN Photo.)

'Most Beloved' Dog Victim of Poisoning

Oak Bay police and SPCA officials are investigating the area's first report of dog poisoning this year—11-year-old Lassie, "most beloved member" of the E. L. Young family, 2810 Somass.

The dog, a favorite with children, was found dying in a next door garden Monday. She had apparently been trying to reach home.

Loss of their pet has left the family heartbroken. Mrs. Young said today. Lassie was devoted to the children, four-year-old Evan and two-year-old Brenda.

"In fact she loved all children," said Mrs. Young. "She had a natural instinct to look after them."

Mrs. Young was at a loss to understand the poisoning.

FOUND STARVING

"She was a favorite with neighbors and was not a barker like some dogs around here, although she sometimes wandered into gardens. When we came to Victoria less than a year ago we were told people here liked dogs."

She said Lassie became the family pet in 1952 when she was found starving on the highway near Nelson.

"She had been abandoned for being female so we took her in," Mrs. Young said.

During her life, Lassie survived two major operations. Last year in Prince George she had her entire nose crushed by a heavy oil truck.

SERIOUS OFFENCE

The dog had seen one of the Young's children standing on the other side of the street down which the truck was travelling. She apparently dashed across the street to keep the child from wandering into the path of the truck.

"It was touch and go," said Mrs. Young, "but Lassie pulled through—complete with a new nose."

"She survived all that only to die of poisoning." An autopsy by a veterinarian confirmed death was due to poisoning, but the type of poison used has yet to be determined.

Animal poisoning comes under the category of cruelty to animals and is an offence included in the Criminal Code of Canada.

Close City Home Sally Ann Urges

'Give Savings To Matson Sunset Lodge'

Salvation Army spokesmen today called for closing of the city's Mountain View Home and using some of the operating savings to give $50,000 towards construction of the Matson Memorial Sunset Lodge.

The proposal was outlined by an Army delegation to City Hall. It will be followed by a formal submission to council April 13.

Salvation Army board chairman William McIntyre said the delegation told Mayor Percy Scourrah the city spends $17,500 annually on operating costs for Mountain View Home and will have to spend an extra $12,000 this year for new equipment.

FUND DRIVE

Meanwhile the Army is campaigning for funds to build a large, modern home for the aged on the old Matson Estate which could easily absorb the 28 aged men living at the city home.

"When our development is ready—probably about mid-1962—we could take the old men in the civic home, thus relieving the city of annual costs of about $17,500 and the extra $12,000 needed now," Mr. McIntyre said.

"In addition, this would free the property for other civic use or sale."

"In return, we are proposing that the city give us a substantial grant to help construct the Matson Sunset Lodge."

YOUTH, 16, SENTENCED TO YEAR ON BIRTHDAY

Ronald Bennett, 614 Seaforth, marked his 16th birthday today by appearing in city police court.

He was given a minimum sentence of one year in jail on each of two charges of car theft—concurrent.

Bennett, transferred from juvenile court, pleaded guilty to both charges before Magistrate William Ostler.

Mr. Ostler sent the boy to Oakalla jail young offenders' unit for one year definite and three months indeterminate.

Noting that it was Bennett's birthday and referring to a probation report, the magistrate told him:

"For a boy of your age you have what could only be described as a shocking record. Although it is your first appearance in adult court, you seem to have run the gamut of offences..."

Milky Way Wins Packaging Fight

No change in present fluid milk packaging regulations will be recommended by the legislature's select standing committee on agriculture.

The committee was asked whether legislation should be brought in to restrict fluid milk packages to standard Canadian measures—half-pint, pint, quart and multiple quart measures.

Stan Carnell (S.C.—Peace River South), chairman of the committee, which heard representations from dairy interests across the province, said the committee, in a closed meeting today, resolved to leave milk packaging regulations unchanged.

He said the committee split on the question but a majority of its 13 members voted in favor of no change.

The committee study resulted from a dispute that has continued for more than a year over use by Milky Way Dairy in suburban Saanich of United States standard measure cartons containing 64 ounces. A Canadian two-quart carton contains 80 ounces.

Questions were raised on whether the consumer should be protected against any possibility that they might buy the 64-ounce carton believing they were getting the larger Canadian standard quart. Committee members also wondered whether restrictions to Canadian standards might interfere with the free enterprise shown by farmers who established Milky Way Dairy.

Milky Way's right to use the 64-ounce cartons under present regulations was upheld by the courts when challenged by the agriculture department earlier.

The matter is expected to be dropped by the legislature following the agriculture committee report.

TREKKERS GIVEN ROUSING SENDOFF

They Hit the Air Monday ... The Road Wednesday

Victoria's two "bird-walkers" were given a rousing send-off Monday night as they left on the first leg of their intended 4,000-mile walk across the country.

Fellow Jaycees and friends of Don Johnson and Blaine Tringham formed a motorcade from the city out to Patricia Bay airport and then staged a noisy farewell for the boys in the airport hall.

The two were expected to reach Halifax this morning and plan to start out on their marathon hike-home Wednesday, carrying "Follow the birds to Victoria," slogans all the way.

Going to Halifax with the walkers were 30 dozen daffodils for presentation to the Halifax Junior Chamber of Commerce from the "daffodil capital" and a papier mache seagull. The boys hope to present the latter to the Jaycees' national president in Halifax.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Four dollars petty cash was stolen from a desk by a thief who broke into Island Vegetable Co-Op, 748 Market, Monday night.

Police said a front door pane was smashed out.

A sure harbinger of spring appeared today as Victoria College issued its summer session calendar.

Registration closes June 12 for the 44 university credit courses in 12 subjects and four non-credit courses.

About 700 enrolled last year in the summer school.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. These days we hear so much about nations of the Commonwealth, both leaving and joining. Can you please give a modern-day definition to the term Commonwealth? C.H.S.

A. The term is used in referring to a state, country, or to a group of states and countries, as in the British Commonwealth. Original meaning was a group of persons banded together for the common good, or "commonwealth." Australia, a member of the British Commonwealth, is a commonwealth in itself, as, for instance further, is Pennsylvania in the U.S. In essence, it is merely a term sometimes used, sometimes not. Today it is applied mostly in connection with countries which while independent hold filial allegiance to England.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Scourrah's Ltd., ladies' wear, 728 Yates, entered a plea of not guilty to a two-count charge in city police court Monday to removing and destroying labels from Japanese goods.

Charge is laid under the Excise Tax Act, forbidding removal of labels designating origin of goods, in this case, sweaters.

The store was remanded to April 24 to fix a date for trial.

Oak Bay Kiwanis Club has a problem.

Pick-up day for its annual plant, shrub and tool sale—set for March 25 in Fireman's Park—was Saturday but a shortage of helpers resulted in many items not being picked up.

To get around this, people with suitable items left on their hands should contact EV 4-7924.

Free preview of films will be shown Wednesday at 3 p.m. in the music room of Victoria Public Library.

Saanich will ask school principals to do a little lecturing on the practice of being tidy.

Police chief Bert Pearson said today he is receiving many complaints that pupils on their way to and from schools are littering streets and sidewalks with paper and trash.

Mount Douglas High School was singled out as one of the big offenders.

He said the municipal clerk plans to take the matter up with school principals.

Monthly meeting of the Saanich Liberal Association will be held at Liberal headquarters, 1322A Government Street, tonight at 8. Films will be shown and a discussion on party structure will be conducted by the provincial organizer, Ron Fairclough.

A St. Patrick's tea will be featured at the next meeting of Esquimalt Golden Age Club, in the community hall Esquimalt Road, 8 p.m. Wednesday. There will also be a miscellaneous stall.

Finals in the Golden Gavel public speaking contest will be held Monday, March 27, at 8 p.m. in the city hall council chambers.

There will be eight contestants, two winners from each of four previous contests.

OWNED SPY EQUIPMENT

Mystery Man
Takes Blame

LONDON (AP)—Gordon A. Lonsdale, mystery man of the British naval secrets trial, dramatically acknowledged in court today that spy equipment found in a suburban bungalow belonged to him.

The key figure of the spy trial, variously represented as an American, a Russian and a Canadian, took full blame for a radio transmitter which could be beamed to Moscow, a cigarette lighter with secret compartments, photographic equipment with microdots used in espionage and some fake passports.

The house where Scotland Yard found the assorted paraphernalia was owned by Peter Kroger, 50, and his wife, Helen, 47.

Lonsdale said they were innocent of any connection with the suspect items. He claimed that $2,600 in American money found in the house also belonged to him.

CAN'T BE QUIZZED

Lonsdale made his voluntary statement in Old Bailey courtroom without being sworn, a procedure that prevented his being cross-examined.

Lonsdale spoke for seven minutes as soon as court convened. He made no mention of the remaining two defendants, Henry F. Houghton, 55-year-old British naval clerk, and Houghton's girl friend, Ethel E. Gee, 46, a fellow employee.

Houghton and Miss Gee admitted they gave Lonsdale papers relating to Britain's undersea warfare and films of drawings of the top secret atomic submarine Dreadnought.

INNOCENCE CLAIMED

As soon as Lonsdale accepted full responsibility for the items found in the Kroger home, the Krogers made statements in a similar manner—not under oath—that they were innocent.

Lonsdale said he was "anxious that Mr. and Mrs. Kroger should not suffer from what I have done in putting my property in their home."

"I have known the Krogers since 1955," Lonsdale told the jury of 12 men, who have sat since March 13.

OFTEN VISITED HOUSE

"During the last two or three years I often visited them and sometimes spent weekends in their home. Whenever they went away from Ruislip, Peter Kroger would leave the keys with me and ask me to stay at his house where he had antiquarian books worth several thousand pounds.

"He knew I lived in a very small service flat. I used this flat as an excuse to keep at the Krogers some of my property, including a movie camera, various photographic equipment and some other articles."

"At one time while the Krogers were away I constructed the hiding place found in the foundation of the house and deposited there for long-term storage the radio transmitter and other articles."

NUCLEAR CONCESSIONS

U.S. Offers Inspections
On Test Ban

GENEVA (Reuters)—The United States today proposed to let Soviet scientists inspect all nuclear devices to be used in American seismic research programs.

The offer was among a number of proposals made by American delegate Arthur Dean as the three-nation talks on a nuclear tests ban resumed here after a 15-week recess.

Dean said both Britain and the United States would accept a Soviet demand that their scientists be allowed to take part in all stages of experimental explosions, including inspection of the devices, how they were exploded and the data obtained from the tests.

He said President Kennedy would ask Congress to authorize such inspection, banned at present under the McMahon Act which forbids all foreigners from examining U.S. nuclear devices.

SIMILAR ACCESS

Dean asked the Russians to grant American scientists similar access to Soviet nuclear devices if Russia decided to explode them in a Soviet research program.

He also asked the Russians to reconsider their decision not to take part in joint seismic research programs with the West.

Dean said the West is prepared to agree to a moratorium of three years on small underground explosions. The West had previously proposed a two-year moratorium with an additional period of three months' appraisal.

The Russians have proposed a moratorium of four to five years.

The American delegate said West is prepared to grant the Soviet Union a total of 20 annual inspections of suspicious seismic events on United States soil and an additional 20 on British territories.

The West previously had suggested 20 inspections on Soviet territory and 20 to be divided between the two Western powers.

The Russians last year would agree to no more than three inspections on Soviet territory.

Dean also conceded the So-

'ANY CONTROL' ACCEPTABLE
SAYS MR. K

LONDON (Reuters)—Nikita Khrushchev today said the Soviet Union will agree to "any" control over its sweeping three-stage disarmament plan.

In a three-hour speech from the Asian republic of Kazakhstan broadcast throughout Russia by Moscow radio, the Soviet premier said:

"We are not threatening anyone. On the contrary, we do not want war."

He said Russia will "accept any conditions of control on disarmament if our proposals on disarmament are accepted."

Khrushchev last September proposed a three-stage disarmament plan before the United Nations General Assembly in New York including elimination of nuclear weapons; prohibition of all means of mass destruction, and completion of the abolition of armed forces.

The West countered with a more gradual plan.

UN Failure
Soviet Aim
Says Adlai

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union today demanded the removal of United Nations' secretary-general Dag Hammarskjöld "as an accomplice and organizer" of the slaying of deposed Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba.

In a sharp attack before the UN General Assembly, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko also called for the termination of the UN operation in the Congo with a month and a thorough structural overhauling of the world organization.

He warned that the United Nations may suffer the same fate as the League of Nations if it continues in its present course.

Due to The Congo crisis, he said, the world faced a situation similar to that on the eve of the Second World War.

CRITICIZES RUSS

U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson accused the Soviet Union of obstructing UN efforts in The Congo and of injecting into the debate "the most destructive spirit of the cold war."

"The Soviet Union does not want the United Nations to succeed in The Congo," Stevenson said.

Gromyko's demand for Hammarskjöld's dismissal was one of five major points he advanced as the 99-nation assembly began its new round of Congo debate.

At least two Victorians were among residents of this area who crossed their fingers and hoped the horses they drew in the Irish Sweepstakes would bring them riches in Saturday's Grand National steeplechase classic at Aintree.

They are among 42 B.C. ticketholders whose names were drawn in Dublin today.

The draw is continuing, with holders of tickets on 18 of the 74 entered horses still to be announced. The tickets released today covered 56 horses.

Victoria ticketholders are: Lucky You, QEQ 01834, on Arthur Cox, and Pay Day, RQP 03051, on Floater.

Vancouver Island ticketholders: Emily, Nanaimo, QEQ 73307, on Quelle Affaire; Pat Hill, Ladysmith, QCS 18525, on Green Drill; Mimka, Vancouver Island, QCS 18525, on Lulworth Cove; J. R. Murray, Ladysmith, QDT 04359, on Epigraph II (scratched).

TICKET ON FAVORITE

One of the B.C. ticketholders, identified only as "We Trust," Vancouver, held a ticket on the strong (10-1) favorite, Merryman II. He is considered to have a strong chance to score his second straight Grand National victory, something that hasn't been done in 25 years.

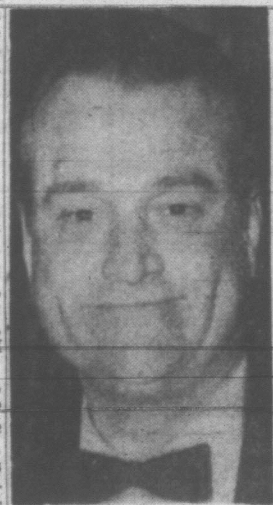

A winning ticket is worth approximately $140,000. Second place is worth about $54,000, and third about $20,000.

Persons holding tickets on horses who are scratched receive approximately $1,100.

A war veteran, James Cambrey, won $137,500 in the Irish last October. He died in Veterans' Hospital here Feb. 27.

Premier Bennett abruptly adjourned the legislature at 9 p.m. Monday after a night session had been in progress less than an hour.

The premier stated after the House rose that he did not want the government's welfare estimates discussed while the public galleries were filled with welfare workers.

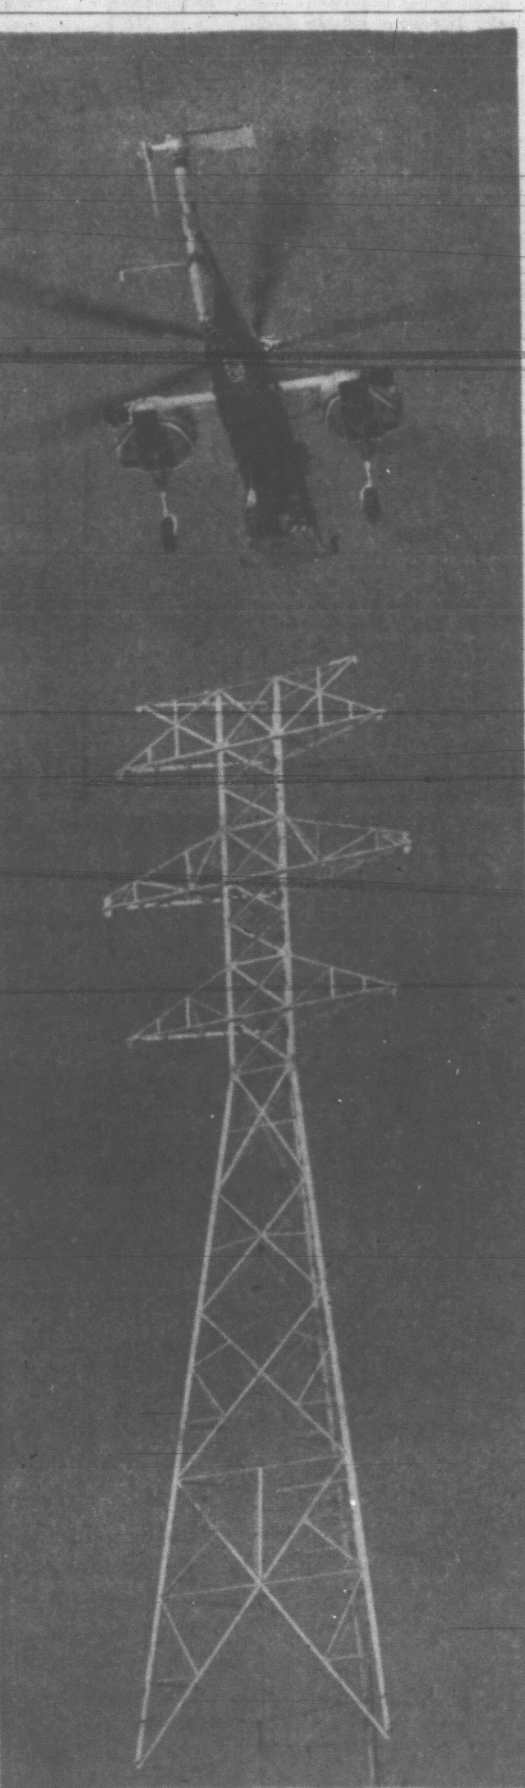

As the House adjourned, a sigh of disappointment was heard from the public galleries, where 50 students from the University of B.C. School of Social Work had gathered.

These estimates were to have followed adoption of estimates for the recreation and conservation department.

The premier moved adjournment after taking back the much-debated salary vote of Recreation Minister Earle Westwood.

He did this, angrily and abruptly, after Leo Nimick (CCF-Cranbrook) had stated that other members of the House lacked the courage to

THE BIG LIFT

Combination of helicopter and light-weight aluminum power transmission towers is drawing wide interest among electric utility construction men at the annual western division meeting of the Canadian Electrical Association in the Empress Hotel this week. Photo shows a Sikorsky helicopter carrying a complete 4,900-pound tower which can be dropped on a prepared foundation and bolted in place in minutes. The technique was detailed to delegates in paper delivered by F. W. Snell of Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. and was described as a construction method particularly well-suited to the rugged mountain terrain encountered in B.C.

At Geneva we're making progress in not blowin' our selves up. Well, that's progress of a sort.

'DON'T LET US HAVE HUMBUG'

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia said Monday night it is "monstrous" for member countries of the Commonwealth to sit in judgment upon one another.

"I am not Dr. Verwoerd," Menzies said. "I am not an apostle of apartheid—also I have my own immigration policy—but I am bound to say that I would not have left the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference later than Dr. Verwoerd left it."

"Don't let us have humbug. I would not tolerate being lectured by other people. There will not be any Commonwealth if it becomes a court with people on trial, because we shall all know each other."

Menzies paid high tribute to Verwoerd's bearing, integrity and courtesy during the prime minister's conference.

FOR VERWOERD

Boos One Side, Cheers on Other

(Times News Services)

CAPETOWN — Booming crowds and demonstrating Negroes greeted South African Prime Minister Verwoerd today.

As the prime minister drove up to his office in the Parliament Building he was booed by non-whites on one side of the street protesting South Africa's withdrawal from the Commonwealth over its race policy.

Whites on the other side of the street cheered and waved placards welcoming him home from the London meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers.

There were no disorders, but later in the afternoon several hundred persons, mostly Negroes, gathered on the main street in defiance of a ban against all demonstrations.

Nine Negro women were arrested and crowds of Africans swarmed around the police van as it took them away.

Verwoerd in his first report on the London conference said in a message to Parliament he did everything possible to keep South Africa in the Commonwealth but had no other choice but to withdraw.

Verwoerd sent a message to Parliament that he could not address it in person today as expected, but would do so Thursday.

He said he understood that British Prime Minister Macmillan would make a statement in the House of Commons Wednesday and "in these circumstances, I do not think I should make any statement until Mr. Macmillan has made his."

Indications earlier were that Verwoerd might make a dramatic announcement in Parliament today, possibly the calling of a general election, Reuters reported.

day, there was no firing on the American plane nor was there any formal Soviet protest.

White declined to give the exact date of the January incident, he said the Soviet foreign office "orally informed" the U.S. Embassy in Moscow that it presumed the alleged violation had occurred over Soviet territorial waters. Russia asked a U.S. government investigation.

Subsequently, the American Embassy informed the foreign office that an investigation had been conducted and that the United States did not believe a violation of Soviet air space had occurred.
